DRY LAW FOES IN SENATE GAIN IN RECORD VOTE

Amendment to Remove Curb on Prescriptions Fails 25-45.

PROVISION ON SEARCH IN RAID BILL ALTERED

Strength of Wets Greatest Shown in 11 Years of Voting.

Opponents of prohibition polled the largets vote they have recorded in the Senate in the eleven years since the dry law went into effect when the Howell home-raid enforcement bill was under consideration yesterday, but they were forced to find solace in that fact, for they did not get enough votes to win.

The vote came on an amendment proposed by Senator Harry B. Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, to remove existing restrictions on the issuance of liquor prescriptions by physicians in the District.

The amendment was beaten, 25 to 45.

A few minutes later Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, brought about another record vote, on a motion to reconsider the first vote on the Hawes amendment, but this, too, was defeated by a vote of 29 to 39. Senator Tydings, determined opponent of the Howell measure, voted for the Hawes amendment, but changed his vote so he could move to reconsider the action.

In Wickersham Plan.

The proposal to remove existing restrictions on the number of liquor prescriptions which may be issued by physicians was one of the unanimous recommendations of the Wickersham Commission and opponents of the Howell bill made much of this fact in their speeches.

That the fight over liquor prescriptions is not finished was shown when Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, proposed another amendment along the same line. His proposal would permit physicians to prescribe beer, porter, stout ale or other malt beverages in such quantity that the alcoholic volume would equal the amount of alcohol it is now permissible to prescribe for a patient in whisky, wine or brandy. This amendment was pending when the Senate recessed.

Some of the teeth of the home-raid section were drawn from the bill earlier in the day, when the Senate approved the Blaine amendment, striking out the words which would authorize raids on homes liquor had been delivered or taken from in the section dealing with private dwellings.

Search Scope Limited.

The Blaine amendment limited the search authority to the scope of the national prohibition law, but the phraseology was immediately added so as to permit raids on homes where liquor has been sold or "manufactured" or "stored" for sale.

Senator Howell and his dry cohorts accepted the Blaine amendment without a record vote and Senator Blaine accepted the second amendment, proposed by Senator Howell in the absence of Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, who proposed it informally last week.

Senator Tydings, however, was not so willing to accept the Borah-Howell amendment and declared that its adoption would defeat the whole purpose of the Blaine amendment. Senator Blaine said he did not accept this view. The Marylander, however, sought to have the "storage" provision stricken out, but was the only one voting for his proposal.

One Fireman Overcome During New York Blaze

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Fire, burning insulation either of steam pipes or cable conduits in a tunnel connecting the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal with yards in the rear, sent out a dense smoke screen which turned day into night in the area today.

Firemen broke through a glass vaulted sidewalk and poured water through the holes. A fireman, unconscious from the smoke, was carried to safety for two blocks through the smoke-filled tunnel by two comrades, themselves partly overcome.

THREE MIDSHIPMEN QUIT AFTER BRAWL

Trio of Upper Classmen Held Guilty of Intoxication at Annapolis.

STAGE DORMITORY FIGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—Three midshipmen who were involved in a drunken brawl in the dormitory at Bancroft Hall have "resigned," is was revealed today by officials of the United States Naval Academy.

While their names were withheld, it was learned that two of the midshipmen were members of the first class, which graduates in June, while the third was a second class man.

The offense with which the trio was charged occurred about ten days ago, when the midshipmen returned to the Academy after 10 o'clock, the hour for "taps." Officials said the investigation had disclosed that all three were intoxicated when they came back to the Academy after spending the evening in town.

When the young men reached the dormitory, their boisterousness arrested the attention of a guard who summoned the officer of the watch, a lieutenant commander whose name was also withheld by the officials. By the time he arrived on the scene the men were reported to have engaged in a scuffl in which all were cut and bruised.

Following the official inquiry, recommendation was made that the trio be dismissed, but Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent of the Academy, permitted the men to resign.

The midshipmen obtained their liquor in Annapolis, officials declared. It is understood that one of the men is from Idaho, one from Indiana and one from Montana.

Liner Is Aground In Nassau Harbor

Munargo Not Believed in Danger; Lighters to Move Cargo.

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 2. (A.P.).—The passenger liner Munargo, of the Munson Steamship Lines, ran aground on the south bank of the channel while entering Nassau harbor today.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Munson Line officials here said the Munargo was aground well inside the harbor at Nassau, and was in no danger.

The vessel grounded at high tide and, in order to float her, it was believed the Nassau cargo would have to be removed by lighters. The Munargo left here with passengers and cargo last Friday for Nassau, Miami and Havana.

Churchman Expected to Arrive at Church on Crutches.

Board May Order That He Be Suspended and Tried in 1934.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., will leave Sibley Hospital this morning and go to the Mount Vernon Methodist Church South to be present at the opening of the hearing into the charges that have been filed against him, it was learned last night.

The Methodist churchman is expected to arrive at the church on crutches and it is believed that he will be permitted to sit, as an observer, with the committee of twelve traveling elders, who will convene at 10 o'clock this morning to determine whether the charges have sufficient substance to merit the suspension of Bishop Cannon and ordering that he be tried before the next church conference in 1934.

Meanwhile the text of the charges filed by four traveling elders of the church, including the Rev. Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman, of Baltimore, remains secret. It is known that these charges are based on Bishop Cannon's stock market activities, his handling of a $65,300 fund for political purposes and on other personal activities of the churchman.

The identities of the committee or jury of twelve elders who will hear the evidence also remained a secret last night, although that will be known as soon as the group convenes today. The text of the charges will not be made known officially until the committee of twelve passes on them.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, Ga., with whom the charges were filed and who, as required by the church discipline, named the committee to hear them, arrived in the city late this afternoon, but he declined to see any one and gave instructions at his hotel that he was not be disturbed by cellers or inquiries."

Bishop Ainsworth with Bishops Edwin D. Mouzon, of Charleston, S. C., and U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va., will preside over the hearing.

No witnesses have been summoned for today's session, which will be devoted wholly to determining what procedure will be followed during the hearing, and reading of the charges to the committee of twelve.

Members of the church who have the arrangements for the hearing in hand said they expected that at least four days will be necessary for the presentation of evidence against Bishop Cannon. The latter will not be permitted to present any evidence on his own behalf, a right which he

Big Loss of Life Feared in Quake

Upheaval Apparently Occurs in Sea Floor Near New Zealand.

Wellington, New Zealand, Tuesday, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—An earthquake occurred this morning in the Hawke Bay vicinity around Napier. Damage was heavy, but early advices were meagre. Apparently there was an upheaval in the sea floor off Napier, for steamers which were putting to sea were heaved mightily.

A number of oil tanks in Napier were set afire, bridges were damaged and wires were put out of commission. The only information was obtained by radio.

Napier lies on the east coast of North Island, of the New Zealand group, about 150 miles northeast of Wellington. A report from Veronica said that a great loss of life was feared in Napier, with conditions there undoubtedly serious.

(Associated Press.)

An earth disturbance, estimated at 8,500 miles from Washington, was recorded yesterday on the Georgetown University seismograph.

It started at 6:06:47 p. m. and reached its maximum intensity at 6:56, continuing for some time thereafter.

BUTLER TRIAL TO BE PUBLIC; OPENS FEB. 16

General Probably Will Ask John W. Davis to Take Case.

MARINE IS CHEERED BY THEATER CROWDS

Hoover Is Reported to Have Advised Against Harsh Tones of Charges.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The general court-martial of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler for calling Premier Mussolini of Italy a hit-and-run driver will be held in Philadelphia beginning February 16, and the sessions will be open to the public.

Meanwhile, Gen. Butler will be a prisoner at large. Until now he has been under arrest at Quantico (he being his own jailer), but late yesterday Maj. Gen. Ben Puller, commandant of the Marine Corps, granted his request that he be allowed to travel about until his trial starts.

It is expected that, once away from Quantico, Gen. Butler will actively assume command of his own battle, always, of course, bowing to his lawyers on legal points.

May Go to New York.

It was even considered probable that Gen. Butler would go to New York and personally ask John W. Davis to take his case.

It was in Philadelphia that the fighting Marine lost his one battle. From 1924 to 1926 he served as director of public safety in that city, his job being to drive out vice and rum. When he failed he placed the blame on the politicians who, he said, had tried to hamstring him.

Philadelphia was named as the scene of the trial after Secretary of the Navy Adams had conferred with President Hoover. Two reasons were ascribed unofficially for the selection of that city—a desire to accommize and a desire to take away from the National Capital what undoubtedly will be a sensational trial.

It was in Philadelphia, that the boss of Quantico called the boss of the Quirinal a hit-and-run driver, in a public speech. It was there that he told the story that a "friend" (allegedly Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr.), told him about how the Duce ran down a child and then continued on with the remark, "What is one life in the affairs of a state?"

Good Order, Discipline.

It is for that speech that Gen. Butler must now stand trial, presumably on one of two charges—conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, or conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Secretary Adams yesterday virtually admitted that the court-martial will be an open one. Previously he has said that it would be closed, but yesterday he had this to say about the sessions:

"Unless we change our minds, they might be open."

It was reported yesterday that at the conference between President Hoover and Secretary Adams, the Executive had expressed the hope that the naval court of six admirals and one major general would not deal too harshly with Gen. Butler.

President Views Charges.

It further was reported that Secretary Adams showed the President a draft of the charges and specification in the case, and that the President suggested that they be toned down a bit.

In most cases newspaper editorial writers have upheld the drastic action taken against Gen. Butler, but theirs evidently isn't the attitude of the man in the street.

Every time that a picture of Gen.

BORAH DEMANDS U. S. FEED NATION'S HUNGRY AS HE HITS 'DOLE' CRY

Extension Considered As Chest Drive Lags

Director Optimistic Although Day's Report Falls $75,000 Short of Quota; Longer Time to Be Discussed at Meeting Today.

Hopes of Community Chest leaders of reporting $200,000 daily for the last three days of the drive were dashed yesterday. The report fell short of that figure by more than $75,000 and workers left a luncheon meeting facing the task of raising approximately $457,000 by the end of the campaign tomorrow night.

Labors of the Chest army, however, boosted the total amount subscribed to $1,493,472.32 of the $1,950,154.40 quota. The report of all five units showed donations of $134,511.94 from 15,988 contributors. The present total of the fund has been given by 65,333 residents of Washington.

The governmental unit led the list of workers yesterday, having raised $50,748.06 through gifts of 7,557 contributors. The metropolitan unit reported $38,436.38 from 3,418 subscribers; the group solicitation unit raised $25,940 from 4,995 citizens; the special gifts committee had $3,064 from 18 donors, while the schools unit reported $783.12.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war time President, was a guest of honor at yesterday's report luncheon held at the Washington Hotel. She watched with interest the workings of the campaign.

The Chest will receive subscriptions from 100,000 givers this year, officials said at the close of the luncheon. They pointed out that 65,333 are already registered as contributors so far, as compared to 21,000 on the same report day last year.

Elwood Street, Chest director, was optimistic over the situation yesterday. He declared that after the same period last year workers raised $451,000, and this year they will be re-

Idahoan Aids Democrats' Relief Proposal for Drought Area.

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF TILSON AND SNELL

Declares Readiness to Force Government Action or Tell People Why.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Borah, of Idaho, as he is known the country over, and with whom words have always been as an easy flowing stream, reached oratorical estate of Burke and Pitt yesterday as he stood beside his desk in the Senate and sounded a call to arms on the proposal to appropriate money to relieve distress.

"I accept the challenge of the gentlemen from the other end of the Capitol," he declared, referring to statements by Majority Leader Tilson, of the House, and Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, that there would be no compromise. "Let us have it out. * * * We will either feed these people or we will stay here and tell the American people why we do not feed them."

And then as he sat down there happened what one seldom, if ever, sees in the Senate. The Democrats arose and one by one marched over to shake his hand. Previously they had also shot the Senate decorum to pieces when they interrupted the Idahoan to applaud him.

Galleries Aid Demonstration.

Six or more of the Democrats stood as they did so and the galleries joined in the demonstration. And the doorkeepers, who usually at the first sign of any such carryings-on as this run around uttering threats of ejection, seemed to take their cue from Vice President Curtis, whose gavel, it is learned at all, was not heard in the din.

Later, when it was all over and the press gallery was running around excitedly, exclaiming that in all their born days they had never heard of such a thing, three were some cynical observations that the whole demonstration was framed. Anything, of course, is possible in these days of high-pressure propaganda, but if the demonstration was framed, Vice President Curtis must have been a party to it, which makes it an even better story; and it was not framed insofar as Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, the State hardest hit by the drought, was concerned. As he walked over to Borah the tears were rolling down his face.

It was a big thing for the Democrats—what Borah did. In this matter that threatens to wreck the political men who lose in the end, the Democrats have taken a stand from which they can not withdraw, and they had an awful hang-over yesterday morning from the statements which Mr. Tilson and Mr. Snell had heaped upon them over the week-end.

Buoys Democratic Hopes.

The consensus of press gallery opinion was that Borah had lifted them from their depressed state and put them on their feet again. After all, Borah is a Republican.

He said he had heard a lot of talk about a dole, about how the British government was unable to get rid of it—he said this as he alternately ran his hands through his hair and pounded on the table; as he talked as a man inspired——

"It is said that England established the dole system, and that England can not get rid of it," he related. "England can not get rid of the dole system because she can not get rid of the economic conditions which superinduced the dole. England is feeding men because they have not work to do. Let the work come, let normal economic conditions be restored, let the people have an opportunity to get their old jobs and Parliament will end the dole system in England with the consent of those who have been receiving it.

"We understimate the character, the intelligence and the patriotism of

NEW BORLAND LAW IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Street Assessment Measure Urged by Commissioners Now Faces Senate.

EARLY APPROVAL SEEN

Baddling of a new Borland law on District property owners was but a short step from achievement yesterday when the House unanimously passed the new street assessment law recommended by the District Commissioners and Corporation Counsel William W. Bride to get around court decisions which had practically rendered the existing law inoperative.

The new street-assessment law now needs only the approval of the Senate and the signature of President Hoover to become operative. Indications are that the opposition of District residents will not stop either action.

When the measure was reached on the consent calendar in the House yesterday Representative Robert Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, proposed its amendment to make it conform to the measure favorably reported to the Senate by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee.

The amendments were accepted and the bill was passed and sent to the Senate for its approval. Senate approval is expected to be forthcoming and the new measure sent to the President before long.

Only the District Commissioners, Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, engineer of highways, and Mr. Bride urged enactment of the measure, at hearings before the House and Senate District committees.

Representatives of citizens' associations and other organizations and individual property owners protested against enactment of a new street assessment law for the District.

Objected to Method.

The question involved was not whether the people of the District should pay the cost of street assessments, but purely one of the manner in which the cost should be collected, they protested. District residents prefer to pay the cost of street im-

FINANCIERS CALLED ON VETERAN BONUS

Owen D. Young and Others to Testify on Bond Issue to House Committee.

COMPROMISE IS TALKED

(Associated Press.)

Owen D. Young and half a dozen other industrialists were called last night to counsel the House ways and means committee on plans to pay cash on veterans' bonus certificates.

Chairman Hawley announced the heads of General Motors, the American Radiator Co., the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and others would appear in prolonged hearings, while Chairman Smoot called the Senate finance committee to meet in executive session today.

Hawley's action drew instant complaint of "delay" and "one-sidedness" from Minority Leader Garner. It came at the end of a day of new warnings, at both ends of the Capitol, that economic disaster would follow the floating of a $3,500,000,000 bond issue to cover the cost. The House committee also heard advocates forecast beneficial results to business from enactment of the proposals.

There was talk, meanwhile, of a compromise that would succeed at this session. Representative Patman, of Texas, a Democratic sponsor of immediate redemption, said Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, had expressed belief, after a visit to the White House, that a 50 per cent increase in loans allowed on certificates and a reduction of interest would be acceptable to the administration.

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank of New York, predicted before the Senate banking subcommittee that "hundreds" of small bank failures would follow a bond issue to pay the full value of the certificates.

Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, has been asked to testify today. He has not responded, but is expected. W. H. George, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., will be heard today. So will E. D. Duffield, of the Prudential Life Insurance

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The visit of Prime Minister Bennett of the Dominion of Canada to Washington emphasizes the friendly relations of two American nations. He reported to the press that he had no important business to transact with our Government. There are no serious disputes between the two countries. Such diplomatic exchanges are necessary in the nature of communications between merchants who buy from and sell to each other. The Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence are common natural resources from which mutual advantages will be secured by future development. The only indications of a frontier of 3,000 miles between the United States and Canada are the places where exports and imports are supervised. Yet we are two separate people with a strong distinct national spirit.

In recent years many delegations have come from foreign countries to study our industrial development. It might be profitable for an international delegation to study the manner in which two great and competing countries in North America maintain friendly relations without fortification or any armed forces at their borders. If such a secret could be discovered and applied it would be the greatest blessing that could be secured by many foreign people.

American Diplomat Ignores Attack at Mexican Meeting

Joshua Reuben Clark, Jr., Is Target of Scathing Denunciation by Colombian Communist as "Tool of Capitalists" at Agrarian Congress.

Mexico City, Feb. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Joshua Reuben Clark, jr., United States Ambassador to Mexico, today chose to ignore an attack made upon him yesterday by a speaker at the Agrarian Congress at Puebla, Cuadros Caldos, a Colombian Communist.

The Colombian quoted Ambassador Clark as saying that when the Mexican government divided the lands in Mexico even the earth quaked in protest. He accused the American Ambassador of being a tool of capitalists and a biter opponent of Mexican agrarian policy.

The speaker was vociferously applauded by the peons. La Prensa, Mexico City newspaper, in its report of the meeting today, says that Cuadros Caldos was drunk at the time of his verbal attack upon the American Ambassador.

Ambassador Clark today laughed at the charges made against him. Meanwhile, there is some unofficial talk of Caldos' attention being called to Article 33 of the Mexican constitution, which provides for expulsion from the country of foreigners who meddle in Mexican politics.

The Agrarian Congress at Puebla opened yesterday under the patronage of Gov. Leonides Andreu Almazan, of the State of Puebla, who is not to be confused with Gen. Juan Andrew Almazan, minister of communications. The principal speaker was Gen. Manuel Perez Trevino, minister of agriculture.

Planes Favored By Brown On Transoceanic Mail Line

Dirigibles on Portugal Route Opposed as 50-Cent Letter Rate and Lindbergh's Refueling Plan Are Discussed; to Advertise Bids.

(Associated Press.)

Transatlantic mail flights of the near future will be by plane rather than by dirigible.

Postmaster General Brown made that clear yesterday in a discussion of the McNary-Parker bill asking air mail contracts for Zeppelin ocean mail operators, as compared with the projected plane route to Portugal by way of Bermuda and the Azores.

The dirigibles, Mr. Brown said, had not proven themselves as speedy, as manageable or as capable of keeping to schedule as planes.

The postmaster general expressed his confidence in the feasibility of immediate establishment of regular mail service across the Atlantic.

"I shall issue again in a few dys the advertisement for bids to carry the transaceanic mails by plane," he said. "It will cover the same route, the same kind of service, but will better safeguard the public interest."

The plan provides, Mr. Brown said, that pilots would be safeguarded by patrol boats equipped with radio at 150-mile intervals. Speed boats from these patrol boats, Mr. Brown said, could rescue aviators even if their hydroplanes were forced down on the water.

"Carrying first-class mail only, with a minimum of 50 cents a letter, a plane could carry enough to pay out," said Mr. Brown. "There could not be the Anglo-Saxon race. They are not dole gatherers. They never have been, and if relieving them from affliction which has been visited upon them would have any effect at all, it would be rather to encourage them in the future to guard against a repetition of such a calamity."

To get the full worth of Mr. Borah's words, right or wrong, one has to hear them. They do not ring in print as they do in voice. His yesterday, however, were the fervor that he spent over the country in 1928 to help elect Mr. Hoover save that they carried an additional fire. They were of a hitherto unapproached zeal. They were as of Burke appealing to Parliament to do about the colonies.

To those who associated the proposed relief with a dole he attributed sin "intellectual dishonesty." And it is noteworthy that he dissociated the pending proposal to appropriate $25,000,000 to relieve distress all over the country from the original proposition, and the real one, to appropriate $15,000,000 for loans to drought stricken farmers for food purchases. This is the real bone of contention; admittedly the $25,000,000 proposition is the original one dressed over in an effort to stampede the Eastern members of the House.

Involves No New Principle.

And so far as the drought stricken areas are concerned, Borah insisted no new principle is involved.

"There is no new principle involved; there is no precedent to be established. Everyone concedes that the conditions in the South are due to what we are prone to call an act of God," he said:

"I undertake to say that the American people have never hesitated at any time in their history, whether such visitations were in our country or in foreign countries, to take money from the Treasury of the United States and care for those who are afflicted. We are simply proposing to deal with a condition which again and again has been presented to the Congress of the United States, an affliction visited upon our people or upon a foreign people through some cataclysm of nature and in a way which renders it impossible for them to retrieve their conditions.

"To my mind it is no less than intellectual dishonesty to speak of the conditions in those States which we are called upon to relieve as a precedent for establishing a dole system. When before in the history of the Congress of the United States when there has been a fire or a flood or an earthquake has there been talk about establishing a dole? In no sense does the dole system apply. It has never been regarded as having any application and has no application now."

People Without Food.

In Tennessee, he said, a woman field worker found a widow and four children with only a dish of rancid greases and some soured meal. She was just preparing to cook some "Johnny cake." She had been too proud to ask for assistance.

"Imagine this woman in the condition in which she found herself and her family, too proud, too self-reliant to go and ask for help," he shouted. "Rather would she suffer herself and see her children suffer. Yet we are told that if we feed that woman and feed those children we will undermine her initiative and destroy her self-reliance so that she will no longer be a fit citizen of the United States. Does anybody believe so? It is a cowardly imputation conceived for a wholly different purpose from that by those who are cacusing us of proposing to establish a dole.

"I have no criticism of the Red Cross," he said, "but I do say without hesitancy whatever that it is not meeting the situation. American citizens are on the verge of starvation and in my opinion there is no way to relieve them except through the Congress of the United States."

He defied any senator to arise and say that the proposal to relieve these people was a violation of precedents.

Will Accept Challenge.

"We are told in the morning papers," he continued, "that this matter involves a great principle and that there must be no surrender. So far as I am concerned, I am willing to regard it as a principle. I am willing to accept the challenge. I am willing to take it to the American people. I want to know whether this Government will take care of its citizens when they have been grievously afflicted by an act of God. I am perfectly willing, if a majority of the Senate is willing, to do the same thing, to say that not another appropriation bill shall pass this body until the hungry are fed, until the sick are taken care of, until the Government of the United States has met its obligations to its citizens."

Asserting that the House leaders said there "is no legitimate excuse for an extra session, that the country should be saved from an extra session," BBorah shouted:

"Certainly it should, if an extra session has no better conception of the fundamental principles of humanity than they apparently have in this instance."

On Edge of Starvation.

"I would not complain," he declared, "if I thought that those who are in ned were being taken care of. I know they are not. The report of the Red Cross shows that they are not. They are upon the ragged edge of starvation. Disease is already beginning to undermine children's health, and they are not bing taken care of because, I will assume, the Red Cross has not the means to take care of them To take care of people in 21 States, 1,500,000 people, and 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 unemployed, with from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000, is an absurdity. You may give them 40 cents a week; you may give them enough to keep death from actually visiting them while you are present, but their health is gone; their physical stamina has been undermined; their capacity for the discharge of the duties of American citizenship has been challenged, and that is not taking care of American citizens.

Will Feed or Tell Why.

"So, I say, speaking for myself, I accept the challenge of the gentlemen from the other end of the Capitol. Let us have it out. I do not propose, as a member of this body, to surrender upon that principle. I do not propose to accept the implication and the slur. We will either feed these people or we will stay here and tell the American people why we do not feed them."

Senator Caraway, preceding Senator Borah, and in a trembling voice, called upon John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, to say who inspired the meeting recently of the organization's central committee which refused to accept the $25,000,000 if profered.

The Rev. Alfred E. Barrows wil officiate. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery. She is survived by her husband, Charles G. Appel, and two children, Charles, 4, and Billy, 6.

Clarksburg Man Shot; Suicide Theory Studied

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 2.—Whether he killed himself or was murdered is yet to be determined in the case of Louis Charles, 65, watchman at a local glass factory, who was shot in the head with a revolver today at his home, dying later in a hospital.

No motive for suicide is known. The victim, a native of Belgium, leaves his widow, a son and two daughters.

Cashier Shoots Self; Books in Good Order

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Augustus E. Jefferies, 55, cashier of the Union National Bank of Wilmington, was found shot in the head in his home today. Police said the wound was self-inflicted and his condition was critical.

He left two notes, in which he said his accounts were in perfect order. This was confirmed by officials, who expressed the opinion Jefferies shot himself because of illness. He had been employed by the bank since boyhood.

FLEES BURNING DOWER HOUSE

Mrs. Esther E. DeF. Wilson, big-game huntress (inset), who was forced to flee when the Dower House, near Rosaryville, Md., was partially destroyed by fire Sunday night. The wing which was destroyed was built by Lord Baltimore in 1642. Mrs. Matilda Duvall, the present owner, is seen standing beside the ruins.

Church Rebuilding Burned Hospital

Episcopal Preventorium in Blue Ridge Mountains to Cost $10,000.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 2.—The work of rebuilding the preventorium at St. Anne's Mission Home, destroyed by fire December 2 last, was begun today. This mission plant, located in the Blue Ridge Mountains near the dividing line between Albemarle and Greene counties, is conducted by the Episcopal Church, the work being under the supervision of Archdeacon W. Roy Mason, of this city.

The burned preventorium was originally the rectory at Mission Home, and had not long been dedicated to the work of healing sick children in a section where there is much want and shortage of food. The new building will be on a larger scale and will contain separate pavilions for boys and girls, with an administration building in the center. The two large porches will provide for the care of, 30 patients, 15 boys and the same number of girls.

The building will be two stories in height, and will be constructed of native rock. It will be as nearly fireproof as possible. It will be erected by workmen from the immediate community, and its total cost will be slightly over $10,000.

Child, 8, Killed Beneath Wheels of Milk Truck

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 2.—Crushed beneath the wheels of a farmer's creamery delivery truck this morning, Howard White, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell White, died in the Mary Washington Hospital an hour later. His death marked the fifth automobile fatality in or near Fredericksburg within 48 hours. The child attempted to "hop a ride," but fell beneath the truck wheels.

Willie Hiltner, driver, was released on bond pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest.

Copeland Defends Price of Bread

Requires Drop of 62 Cents in Wheat to Cut Loaf Cent, Senator Says.

Baltimore, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, defended bakers against charges that the price of bread had not followed wheat downward, in an address today before the annual convention of the Potomac States Bakers Association. The criticism, recently voiced in Congress, he said, was founded on "widespread lack of knowledge."

"When wheat sells at $1.50 a bushel, and the price of bread is 10 cents a loaf," he said, "the public believes that when wheat drops to 75 cents a bushel bread ought to be sold at one-half its original price. Of course, this is ridiculous. If I remember correctly, a bushel of wheat will produce 62 loaves of bread. Therefore it requires a drop of 62 cents in the price of wheat to justify a decline of a single cent in price of the loaf."

Senator Copeland hit dieting fads and declared modern bakers' bread is better than ever made before.

Court Rules Express Co. Requires State Charter

(Associated Press.)

The Railway Express Agency, Inc., yesterday was declared by the Supreme Court to be without the right to do intrastate business in Virginia unless it takes a charter under the State laws. The agency, incorporated in Delaware and owned by railroads, in January, 1929, applied to the Virginia State Corporation Commission for permission to do intrastate business.

While the right of the company to conduct interstate business was recognized by Virginia, it refused the company permission to do intrastate business unless it complied with State laws and became a Virginia corporation. The express company challenged the Virginia code, but the Virginia courts held the law valid.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE PANTALOONS THREAT.

THE styles of grandmother are to return in women's apparel this spring and summer, according to Parisian showings of what the well-dressed woman will wear.

* * * *

You may laugh at those resurrected moving pictures showing how the fashionable lady got herself up back in the Cleveland, McKinley and early Roosevelt period, but she will be red hot again this year unless Congress intervenes.

* * * *

The balloon sleeve is coming back!

* * * *

Ruffled flounces, trains, ribbon bows and all the hoity-toity accessories preserved for posterity through the red plush family album are returning.

* * * *

And—stop if the tidings are killing you—the real Smart Setters of 1931-32 will wear flowing lacy pantaloons!

* * * *

Not a mere variation of bloomers, but those don't-spare-the-material creations worn by the girls who used to toss posies in the path of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the Adams boys.

* * * *

As if that were not enough, picture hats are to be the proper caper, too. Nothing is said about hoop-skirts as yet, but it won't be long now.

* * * *

LEGS appear to be due for a total eclipse. The era when a gentleman could say to a lady, "I don't remember your face, but your knees are familiar," is doing a fade-out. There is even the possibility that ankles may be hard to photograph, and that once again in American life a high wind may bring a rush of curious townsmen from the corner store to the street corner.

* * * *

These radical styles are offered chiefly for evening wear, Paris insists, but give those Paris style czars an inch and they will revolutionize an entire wardrobe.

* * * *

Our American girls are holding out pretty stubbornly for the freedom of the knees, so far as street apparel is concerned, but they are beginning to weaken, and many a business man is complaining that it is difficult these days to find a stenographer who doesn't dress modestly.

Oh—and don't say you weren't warned—some of the Paris styles show a return to wasp waists. Remember the wasp waists, boy? Back in the days of high shoes, pompadours, sofa pillows made of college flags and a picture in every home showing the Fencing Girl?

* * * *

Back in the days before girls looked like their brothers and acted like their uncles?

* * * *

Back in the period when a girl who went swimming was considered too mannish, when a bare leg in a chorus would result in a theater raid by the Vigilantes, when cigarettes were supposed to stunt a growth and kill a reputation, and when a dashing four-mile drive in a buggy was whoopee of a high order?

* * * *

Bring back the styles of yesterday. What the world needs more than anything else is a good laugh, anyhow.

DIRE CRIME OF A MARINE.

Oh, naughty, naughty,
Butler, Smedley!
You did a thing
That's very deadly;
You wicked, vicious,
Low old meany—
You weren't nice
To Mussolini!

THE New York police are considering—just considering, y'understand—closing all night clubs at 1 a. m. The theory is that any patron who can't make up his mind whom to shoot by that time deserves to get put out.

Washington now announces that doctors will no longer be required to specify on each whisky prescription the ailment for which it is intended. This should reduce the amount of perjury in the medical profession by 90 per cent.

* * * *

In other words, it will eliminate this type of dialogue from doctors' offices the country over:

Patient: And, say, doc, could you let me have a prescription for a pint of whisky?

Doctor: What do you want whisky for?

Patient: Oh, nothing special.

OWNER OF BURNED MANSION MAY SELL

Big Game Huntress Was at Dower House During Blaze Sunday.

RED CROSS PLEA IS MADE

Attempts will be made to form a syndicate to rebuild the Dower House, built in 1642 near Rosaryville, Md., as a hunting lodge for the fourth Lord Baltimore, according to Mrs. Matilda Duvall, present owner.

Mrs. Esther Evans De Forest Wilson, big game huntress, who served a year in prison for shooting her husband, was a guest in the place when fire partially destroyed it Sunday night.

Mrs. Duvall said that she might be forced to sell the remainder of the house, which was partially destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon, if it is not rebuilt. The house was originally erected in 1642, after design by Sir Christopher Wren, and another wing was added in 1730.

Mrs. Duvall estimated the loss yesterday at about $75,000, only partially covered by insurance. Much of the furniture and glassware, as well as some old silver, which was in the burnt wing, was destroyed. The fire started under the roof of the original building and gutted the interior, although the walls still are standing.

Mrs. Duvall and her daughter Catherine, who discovered the fire, lost all their personal effects. Shortly before the fire the house was the scene of a luncheon given by the Dutch Legation.

Mrs. Wilson served a year in the prison on Welfare Island, N. Y., for shooting and wounding her husband, Dallett H. Wilson, in his offices in New York. She is well-known for her hunting expeditions in Africa, and for her explorations in other parts of the world. She was a guest of Mrs. Duvall at the time of the fire. It was reported recently that she was in Washington to seek a reconciliation with her husband.

A date will be set Thursday for the trial of Herman Brady for the Seat Pleasant bombing when State's Attorney Alan Bowie confers with Judge Robert Moss of the Anne Arundel circuit court. Bowie added that he is "as determined as ever" to prosecute the man, whose brother was convicted last week.

Herman Brady, indicted with his brother LeRoy for the bombing which killed three persons, has never stood trial before. LeRoy was tried once in Rockville on a change of venue, but a mistrial resulted. LeRoy's second trial, which was removed to Annapolis on another change of venue, resulted in his conviction on a charge of second degree murder, which carries a maximum penalty of 18 years.

The pair is accused of having sent a bomb, disguised as a Christmas present, to the home of John Hall, in Seat Pleasant. Among those killed was Naomi Hall Brady, who had married Herman a short time before. The others slain by the explosion were Naomi's brother and sister.

Temple Biggs, of Jenkins Corner, Md., was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff C. A. Thompson on two charges of assault with a dangerous weapon. He is being held at the Marlboro Jail.

Riggs is accused of shooting at Roger Alvey, of the same place, with a pistol. He is also charged with shooting at Adrian Butler, of Clinton, with a shotgun. He was arrested at his home.

Three colored men were also arrested yesterday by Thompson, all of them being charged with assault and battery on Carroll Wilson. They are Monk Pinkney, of Anacostia, D. C.; James Johnson, of Camp Springs, and William Johnson, of the same address. The fight took place at Camp Springs.

While urging that no pupil in the county school system feel that he is assessed for any particular amount, Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, yesterday sent a letter to all teachers, setting an average of 10 cents per pupil in the current Red Cross drive.

Mr. Orem has decided that the school system should consider itself a division of the relief committee, with Mrs. Mary M. Euwer as treasurer of the fund. He cites the fact that teachers are on a salary basis as a sign of their good fortune, and asks them to do all that they can to help raise the county's quota of $3,000.

Mr. Orem's letter stressed the fact that he did not want pupils to do door-to-door soliciting, and that he did not want any principal to feel compelled to stage a money-making entertainment. On the other hand, he asked that the teachers and their friends make their contributions through the school committee.

He also hopes that pupils will ask their parents to contribute through the school system, and that they will attain the average of 10 cents per pupil. The report from the school system is due on February 6.

Numerous charges of infidelity are made in a divorce suit filed yesterday for Henry E. Bowers, 20, of Brentwood, against Adeline Jennie Bowers, of Mount Rainier.

The man named two corespondents, and states that there are numerous others whose names he does not know. The couple was married in 1924, the bill states, and have one child, Robert Edgar Bowers, 3 years old. Through his attorney, Bird H. Doiby, the man asks for an absolute divorce.

Farmer Is Jailed After Ax Attack

Road Worker, 27, Discovered Unconscious With Hand Almost Severed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 2.—Homer Smith, Spotsylvania County farmer, was in jail today, the admitted assailant of Carl Roberts, 27, highway worker, who was found unconscious on a road near Smith's home with his right hand almost cut off and deep wounds about the head and body. Smith told officers he had struck Roberts with an ax in defense of himself after Roberts had attacked him first.

Roberts' hand was amputated in the local hospital, where doctors said only coagulation of the blood saved his life.

Smith asserted that when he arrived home Saturday night Roberts and John Bradley, Roberts' brother-in-law, were fighting. He sought to intervene, but was attacked by Roberts, who pursued him into an orchard. He then struck Roberts with an ax, he said.

FRANCONIA SCHOOL TOPIC OF MEETING

Fairfax Supervisors, Board of Education to Discuss 7-Room Project.

EXPENSE IS OPPOSED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. Box 344, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 1334-W-2.

A special joint meeting of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and the County School Board will be held today in the board rooms of the courthouse at Fairfax when they will consider and discuss items of the school budget for the ensuing school year.

One of the questions is the proposed 10-cent tax levy to erect a seven-room school building at Franconia in the Mount Vernon district. The citizens of this district seem to be divided on this question. Last fall the citizens requested improved school facilities in the district, but when told such improvements would mean increased taxes, many reversed their stand.

A recent mass meeting of citizens of Lower Mount Vernon District passed a resolution addressed to the supervisors and school board against the levy for the building at Franconia. The citizens objected to scrapping the present Potters Hill School and transporting their children by bus to the new school at Franconia. They suggested that an annex to the Potters Hill School be erected. The opponents of the movement to build an annex say that Potters Hill School is near the edge of the Fort Humphreys Military Reservation, where there is little hope for community development, while the Franconia community is rapidly growing and the school facilities are poor and inadequate.

The Franconia School and Community League will meet this evening to consider the status of Franconia's school building project. The chief topic will be a report from the league delegates, who will attend the meeting of the supervisors and school board at Fairfax today.

Another question will be the communication from Richmond stating that the Virginia Court of Appeals has handed down a decision reversing the lower court of King and Queen County on the distribution of money from the State literary fund for the erection of school buildings. Judge Jones had ruled that no money should be borrowed for school construction except on the vote of the people in that county.

Judge William P. Woolls of the corporation court of Alexandria is presiding in the Fairfax County Circuit Court this week hearing civil cases. Judge Woolls is assisting Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the circuit court in clearing the docket of the Fairfax County Court, as Judge McCarthy is this week presiding in the circuit court of Prince William County.

The Holy Name Society of the St. James Catholic Church at West Falls Church will meet this evening in the rectory of the church.

The Falls Church Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at Falls Church, has elected the following delegates to the national convention: Mrs. C. N. McGroarty, regent; Mrs. John F. Bethune, vice regent; Mrs. George B. Fadley, Mrs. N. A. Cobb, Mrs. Samuel H. Styles, Mrs. Philip Tabott, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Pearce Horne, Mrs. George N. Lester, Mrs. E. C. Hope and Miss Gertrude Orr.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson announced yesterday that the special meeting of high principals of Fairfax County, which was scheduled to take place tomorrow afternoon in the Oakton High School, has been postponed indefinitely because of the illness of C. J. Huslup, of Richmond, Va., Virginia State superintendent of vocational training in schools, who had conducted an investigation in Fairfax County for vocational training in the high schools.

The directors of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow in the chamber's offices in the old clerk's office building at Fairfax to consider the report of the special committee which was appointed to draft a plan for financing the chamber's activity for the coming year.

J. P. Andrews, of Charlottesville, Va., the State forester in charge of the educational branch of the fire prevention work, is planning to present motion pictures regarding forest fire prevention in several of the schoolhouses of Fairfax County during the coming month. County Forest Fire Warden Joseph Money is making the necessary arrangements for the display.

The Falls Church Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will meet this evening in the lodge rooms of the Odd Fellows Hall on Broad street in Falls Church. Mrs. Ida Hawxhurst will be in charge of the program. Dr. Macon Ware will direct the play a mock trial, which is to be presented by the past patrons and matrons.

The Groveton Community Club will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Groveton Schoolhouse on the Washington-Richmond highway. An entertainment known as "The Groveton Revue" will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Irene Richardson. All members of the club will take part.

The Women's Mission Union of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Borgstadt in East Falls Church. Mrs. E. T. Fenwick will act as leader.

The Farmers and Mechanics Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, at Andrew Chapel, will meet this evening in the schoolhouse at Andrew Chapel.

The Pioneer Grange will meet this evening in the Grange Hall at Masonville, on the Falls Church-Annandale road. Mrs. Milton Hartley, lecturer of the grange, has arranged for a spelling match and for a whistling contest among the women present.

The Fairfax Garden Club will meet this morning at the home of Mrs. Sheild McCandlish, on Payne street, in Fairfax. Mrs. M. D. Hall will read a paper specially prepared for the occasion.

The home nursing class at Herndon will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Russell A. Lynn under the supervision of Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse.

A program on social customs will be one of the attractions of the meeting of the Burke 4-H Club in the Burke School this morning. Miss Sarah E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, will give a demonstration on the making of economical meat dishes. Irene Linton will discuss every-day courtesies in the home. Miss Edith Mason will talk on how to introduce persons; Miss Anna Sheetz, on the duties of the hostess; Miss Alice Dove, the duties of the guest, and Miss Marjorie Taylor, on the etiquette in public places.

BALLSTON POSTAL SERVICE IMPROVED

Dairies Will Be Inspected in Arlington Section for Right Grades.

G. O. P. CLUB WILL MEET

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Clarendon, Va.
Tel. Clar. 8000.

Effective today, residents of Ballston numbering more than 500 homes will have house-to-house mail delivery twice a day providing rules of postal authorities are complied with regarding suitable mail boxes.

The Ballston office is one of Arlington County's oldest and largest independent offices. Other independent offices in the county are East Falls Church, Fort Myer, Rosslyn, Glencarlyn and South Washington, while Clarendon, Cherrydale and Arlington offices are classified branch offices of the Washington postoffice.

Mrs. Grace B. White, who has been postmistress for the past twelve years and served as clerk prior to that time for three years, states that, in addition to the delivery in Ballston, there also will be a rural route giving daily service to Bon Air, Halls Hill, Glebewood, a part of Arlington and other small communities.

The service effective in Ballston today, Mrs. White stated, is the result of a campaign started by the Ballston Citizens Association and others more than a year ago.

The street signs, one of the provisions of the Postoffice Department, have been erected by a special committee from the Citizens Association composed of Thomas J. Crack, Grover E. Payne and Ray R. Cogswell.

With the question of holding a Democratic primary for the selection of candidates for the county board which will function under the new county form of government effective January 1, 1932, much opposition is developing on the grounds that it would not be logical to hold a primary for only one office and leave a free fight for all for other offices.

It is being freely expressed that party lines should not be drawn in the selection of men for county offices.

As explained by a leading member of the county Democratic committee yesterday, draw party lines and what will happen: First, it is true there will be but one Democratic candidate for each office; second, that there will be a full Republican ticket, of course, that may occur regardless of the primary, but the third great damage that may happen will be the unlimited number of independent candidates for all offices that would present themselves.

Funeral services for Charles H. Fletcher, 59, who died at his home in Clarendon yesterday morning, will be conducted from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Henry J. Miller, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Columbia Gardens, Clarendon.

In accordance with the State law that all milk must be graded and labeled, Sanitary Inspector Norbert Minick announced last night that today he will begin making an inspection of all stores and dairies for the purpose of properly grading and labeling all milk sold in the county.

The midwinter examinations at Washington-Lee High School will start today and continue through Thursday, according to an announcement made last night by the principal, S. F. Vandersalice.

There will be a meeting of the Arlington County Republican Club tonight in the Spaulding Building at Clarendon. All members are asked to attend, as many matters of interest to all club members will be considered.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Robert E. Lee School at Leesburg will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, president of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, will speak.

The Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its February meeting tomorrow night in the new firemen's hall at 8 o'clock. Reports will be received from the auditing and social committees.

The Arlington County Civic Federation will meet tonight in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. President Harry A. Fellows asks that all delegates attend, as many matters of countywide interest will be considered.

The condition of Supervisor E. C. Turnburze, of Washington District, who has been confined to his home in Cherrydale for the last ten days with illness, was reported as much improved last night.

The Clarendon Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. L. M. Morsher, 125 Waverley street, Clarendon.

Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the benefit card party to be given under the auspices of the Arlington County Welfare Club at Windsor Arms, the evening of February 9, the committee announced last night. Mrs. F. Raymond Batues is general chairman in charge of the arrangements.

The ladies' auxiliary to the Jefferson District Fire Department will meet tonight in the auditorium of the Firemen's Hall.

Last Service Set For J. D. Simpson

Retired Navy Yard Worker Will Be Buried at Rockville.

Funeral services for John D. Simpson, 74 years old, retired Washington Navy Yard employe, who died Sunday at his home, 1347 Randolph street northwest, following a brief illness, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from his late residence. Interment will be in Union Cemetery, Rockville, Md.

A native of Hampton, Va., Mr. Simpson had ben a resident of this city for many years. He retired from his position at the Navy Yard in 1923. For a number of years he had been active in church work, and was senior deacon of Grace Baptist Church. He was well known in many fraternal organizations, being a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

Surviving Mr. Simpson are his wife, Mrs. Mary V. Simpson; a son, John B. Simpson; two daughters, Miss E. Demarest Simpson and Mrs. S. R. Lynn, all of this city, and two brothers, Thomas C. Simpson, of this city, and Stephens Simpson, of Cherrydale, Va.

Four Men Are Arrested In Staunton Stabbing

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Feb. 2.—Four Negro men are held in jail here tonight for questioning in connection with the fatal stabbing of Charles Tetus Strother, 37, colored, during a brawl in Negro quarters here late last night.

Strother was stabbed twice near the heart. Police say he was pushed out of the house, walked about 50 feet and fell in a gutter. He died before police could obtain a statement from him. Four Negro women, arrested last night and early today, were released this afternoon.

BETHESDA CITIZENS REPLANTING TREES

Chamber of Commerce Is Supervising Move to Beautify Route.

ADVERTISING IS BARRED

Trees planted along Wisconsin avenue from Woodmont Club to the District line which died in the drought are being replaced with cherry and elm trees, C. C. Copeland, chairman of the tree-planting committee, reported at the meeting of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce last night in the Bethesda County Building. The replacement is expected to be completed within a month.

G. W. Imirie, chairman of the schools committee, reported that Principal Thomas W. Pyle of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School has asked the business men of Bethesda to cooperate in school activities, particularly in the conduct of the vocational and business courses. The principal also offered the use of the school gymnasium to the businessmen.

B. W. Parker, chairman of the committee on the naming of Wisconsin avenue, who presided, reported that his committee is still busy ascertaining public opinion. Edward H. Jones, chairman of the Rockville pike and parks committee, said that his committee has appointed two subcommittees.

The chamber adopted a resolution commending Miss Mary E. Patton, 2122 Massachusetts avenue northwest, for her action in refusing to permit billboards on her 100-acre tract of property on the Rockville pike.

50 Laborers Are Laid Off at Naval Academy

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—Fifty laborers, whites and Negroes, employed at the Naval Academy, have been laid off indefinitely because of insufficient funds, officials of the institution explained today.

Reduction of the force is not unusual, the authorities added. Such a situation generally arises about November 1, they said, but because of hard times and general unemployment conditions, a way was found to carry the whole force along for three months. All hands will be reemployed when funds are available, it was announced.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

We are glad to see Senator Moses give a newspaperman's expense account its proper place in history. When he inserted in the Record the expense account of Senator Nye and his committee it was, of course, not the expense account of an active newspaperman, because Senator Nye is not with us any more. But he was once a newspaperman, and one has only to look in the Record to tell that it was as a newspaperman that Senator Nye made this expense account out.

We have always thought these expense accounts were entitled to a definite place, to an immortal niche in the lore and literature of our people. And Senator Nye's is a classic, and it is well that it is the one that has been chosen.

* * * *

One sees in it the gleeful relief from the blue pencils of managing editors. Over all the years that Nye wrote for the papers he must have had that yearning to be able just once in his life to turn in an expense account and not have it challenged. It is a yearning in which all of us share.

Perhaps there is no more enlightening commentary on our modern life than the ingenuity and brilliancy that go into a newspaperman's expense account.

There have been expense accounts among our trade that were, indeed, classics.

A whole flock of them came out of the trip the fellows made into the wilds of Canada several years ago to meet the three balloonists who had flown away and gotten stranded. One fellow made out an accounting a mile long and at the bottom penned a note to his M. E.

"In this somewhere," he said, "is an overcoat. See if you can find it."

* * * *

There was another fellow, however, who could not take such liberty with his office. So he put in $50 for a dog which he said had died while pulling his sled into the frozen north, $10 for a minister to give this loyal canine a funeral befitting the services he had rendered, and $5 for flowers.

Jurors Free Four On Murder Count

Winchester Inquisitors Fail to Indict B. Orndorff, Three Sons.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 2.—The Frederick County Grand Jury today refused to indict Blanton Orndorf and three sons, Herbert, Precious and Woodrow, charged with shooting and killing their wife and mother, Mrs. Susan Orndorff, during a fight with officers November 28. Likewise, not a true bill was returned on a charge of assaulting the officers with intent to kill. The officers went to the Orndorff home to take possession of a dog held by court order to belong to Chester Hockman, and also to arrest another son, Arthur Orndorff, on an old misdemeanor charge. A fight ensued and a shotgun exploded killing Mrs. Orndorff. Authorities charged Orndorff and sons with murder. Not a true bill was also returned for George W. Pingley charged with illegal possession of a still.

An indictment was found against Dewey Shoemaker charged with arson in connection with the burning of the plant of the Eastern Silica and Chemical Co. October 28, causing a loss estimated at $100,000.

Dahlgren Bridge Time Bill Passed by House

The House yesterday passed the Senate bill extending the time for completion of the bridge authorized to be constructed across the Potomac River from Dahlgren, Va., to Popes Creek, Md.

The bill was reached on the consent calendar and was passed without objection. It already had been passed by the Senate and it now goes to the President for his signature.

Bank Depositors May Be Paid Half

Receivers Believe Chatham Savings, at Danville, Can Liquidate Part.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 2.—The Chatham Savings Bank, which closed November 29, may pay 50 cents on the dollar to its depositors, it is indicated by the report of the receivers which followed the 400-page report of the audit.

The receivers, in their report, analyze the bank's affairs, take issue in some particulars with the auditors' findings and recommend a slow process of liquidation instead of demanding payment by all who owe the bank, which the receivers believe would entail "ruthless sacrifice" of the bank's assets and "spell financial disaster to the territory served by the bank."

Judge Don P. Halsey has sanctioned and decreed the carrying out of the receivers' suggested policies.

FINANCING OF PARK PLANS SUPPORTED

$1,200,000 Flotation to Be Asked of Assembly by Montgomery.

WOULD BORROW OF U. S.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9102 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Provision for the issuance of bonds to finance the development of park lands in Montgomery County in accordance with the Cramton bill is made in recommendations to the county delegation to the general assembly made public yesterday by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county administration leader.

The recommendations are the result of a number of conferences between the legislators, members of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Montgomery County commissioners, and leaders of the Democratic county organization at which the park program for the next four years was discussed for recommendation to the legislators.

The members of the park and planning commission as well as the members of the legislature and the county commissioners have agreed that the taxable basis of Montgomery County metropolitan district can conservatively be expected to increase by a minimum amount of $44,000,000 in the next eight years, which, together with the present taxable basis in the district of $56,000,000, will result in a taxable basis of $100,000,000 for 1939, which is the first year that the county will be required to make a payment to the Federal Government to repay money advanced under the Cramton law.

The officials have decided to ask legislative authorization during the present session to issue $1,200,000 in bonds of the Metropolitan District in 1939 to repay a similar amount which will be borrowed from the Federal Government in the near future to purchase park lands.

The Federal Government will give one-third of the amount to be spent for park lands as an outright donation and the other two-thirds will be loaned, interest fere, for a period of eight years. Officials estimate that the bond issue can be retired in 50 years by the application of the present 7-cent park tax without raising the tax rate. The greater the taxable basis exceeds $100,000,000 the smaller portion of the 7-cent tax will be required to retire the bonds in 50 years.

An additional bond issue of $200,000 short-term notes for the purpose of providing recreational facilities and building park drives in the southern part of the District of Columbia and of the Rock Creek Valley, Sligo Valley and Cabin John Run Valley will be asked. These notes will be retired in the next eight years and will absorb 5 cents of the park tax. The remaining 2 cents of the 7-cent park tax will be used to defray expenses of maintenance and policing the recreational facilities which are to be installed at the earliest possible dates.

The county officials and county representatives further decided to urge the Maryland General Assembly and Gov. Ritchie to commit the State to the reepayment of one-third of the amount which the county expects to borrow for park grounds.

It is pointed out that the State has a very real financial interest in the Maryland suburbs of Washington City inasmuch as the State is now collecting $256,000 additional taxes in suburgan Montgomery and Prince Georges Counyt above the amount collected in 1910 and that this revenue comes almost entirely from increase in taxable values.

By applying one-tenth of the increase, the State of Maryland can match on the basis of a 15-year bond issue any requirement to repay one-third of the amount that the counties are expected to borrow. It is further pointed out that title of all of the parks will be in the State of Maryland and this is suggested as another reason that the State should participate in the cost of purchases to the extent of putting u pat least two-ninths of the cost. The State, like Montgomery County, will have nothing to pay until 1939.

The Cramton bill funds, which will be available through the Metropolitan District bond issue, will enable the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to provide for the purchase of land in the valley of Rock Creek, the valley of Sligo Creek, the valley of Cabin John Run and the valley of Northwest Branch of the Anacostia River in Montgomery County for a distance of approximately 8 miles in each of the valleys except Sligo Valley, which will be considerably shorter. The area to be purchased in Montgomery County is approximately three times the present area of Rock Creek Park in the District of Columbia.

The Montgomery County Automobile Dealers Association will hold its annual meeting tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Montgomery Country Club at Rockville. Officers will be elected.

Funeral services for Henry Nolte, 81 years old, who died at his Silver Spring home Thursday, were held yesterday at St. John's Catholic Church, Foreta Glen. Requiem mass was said by the Rev. C. O. Rosensteel, pastor of the church. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Nolte was a native of Germany, coming to America at the age of 4 years. He has lived in Silver Spring for the past 76 years.

Besides his widow, he is survived by five sons, Joseph B. Nolte, Andrew L. Nolte, John H. Nolte, of Silver Spring; Frank Nolte, of Washington, and William A. Nolte, of Fairland, and three daughters, Mrs. Garrett A. Fitzgerald and Miss Helen Nolte, of Silver Spring, and Miss Elizabeth Nolte, of Washington.

The annual meeting of the Montgomery County Fish and Game Protective Association will be held February 10 at the Rockville High School, it was announced yesterday by County Commissioner W. Frank Ricketts, chairman of the general committee on arrangements.

UNION SEEKS LIGHT ON JOB 'AGREEMENT'

Former Strikers Fail to Get Work; 'Mediators' Are Sought.

SECRECY IS MAINTAINED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 2.—Members of the textile union waded through the fog of uncertainty today, seeking light on the alleged "agreement" with the mills, under which they were to secure their posts in the Riverside and Dan River Mills, but got slight encouragement. A mere handful secured jobs and there was a reiterated denial by H. R. Fitzgerald, company president, now in New York, that there had been any agreement, as well as one from Dr. Carroll Flippen, mentioned in union circles as the "mediator" who completed arrangements, although he denies ever attempting to function in that capacity.

Textile workers were looking for two men, H. M. Morgan, coal mine operator, who they have been told "settled the strike," and Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, who was still absent from the city this evening.

The mill reopening was peaceful. Once there was a doubtful moment when a crowd of 30 men endeavored to get through the gates of No. 2 mill at Schoolfield, demanding their jobs. Soldiers on strike duty and special police ordered them to disperse and they did so.

At one of the Riverside mills, 100 former employes vainly sought work. George Robertson, mill superintendent, stated that a "few here and there" were filling vacancies, and that some new machinery was being started.

A lid of secrecy was clamped down at union headquarters and C. S. Garrison, union contact official, who was asked innumerable questions regarding the present status, admitted that he had been told to "make absolutely no statements." He was handed a printed question asking if there exists an agreement between the union and the mills on strike settlement and he refused to answer it.

There seem to be three chief schools of thought today among the union members.

One holds that Gorman is biding his own time to produce a written statement signed by H. R. Fitzgerald agreeing to replace strikebreakers with the old help. This however, Fitzgerald denies. Another group believes that the situation will resolve itself ultimately, and is reserving judgment, while the third feels it has been duped into a settlement and wants to see Gorman or Morgan. It was reported today that the union had sent committees to Charlotteville to ask Dr. Flippen to come here and explain his position and another to ask Morgan to appear before the union membership.

The Red Cross today placed Miss Nellie Eareckson, trained nurse, in Schoolfield Village. It was the beginning of material service among destitute families, said Langhorne Jones, chairman of the Pittsylvania Red Cross Unit. Nourishing foods were being supplied families where there is sickness.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the mills at Danville, Va., declared today no agreement has been reached between the mill management and the striking union workers.

CITY VISITOR BEATEN SENSELESS ON ROAD

Man Accuses Marine and Woman Who Took Ride on Bladensburg Pike.

47 STITCHES PUT IN HEAD

With seats covered with bloodstains, the automobile of William B. Lumsden, 26 years old, of Raleigh, N. C., guest at the Hamilton Hotel, who was beaten into unconsciousness early yesterday morning by a woman and her Marine companion, who took a ride with Lumsden, was found on the Bladensburg pike about 1 mile from the District line by Maryland State police yesterday.

Lumsden was found lying at the edge of a side road off Branch avenue southeast by Gus Elgin, of Seat Pleasant, Md. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where he was treated for a possible skull fracture, three broken ribs and internal injuries. Forty-seven stitches were taken in his scalp. Physicians at the hospital said yesterday he would recover.

Lumsden told police that he was accosted by a Marine, who suggested a ride with a girl waiting around the corner. He agreed, and the three drove to an apartment, which they left after a short period. At the Marine's suggestion they drove out on the side road near Branch avenue. Then both persons attacked Lumsden, he sad, beating him mercilessly and leaving him on the road when they drove away.

Police found two buttons on the scene which bore the Marine insignia. They say they will make an effort to locate the attacker at the Marine Barracks here, and if unsuccessful will investigate at Quantico.

Divorce Is Asked By Commissioner

President of Montgomery Board Says Wife Has Deserted Him.

Lacy Shaw, president of Montgomery County commissioners, yesterday filed suit in Circuit Court at Rockville for an absolute divorce from Mrs. Julia D. Shaw, Lyon Park, Va., alleging desertion. The suit was filed by the law firm of Cissel & Woodward, of Rockville.

The petition alleges that the Shaws were married February 19, 1909, at Washington, by the Rev. J. B. McLaughlin, and that they lived in Montgomery County until January 22, 1927, when Mrs. Shaw is alleged to have deserted her husband. "The abandonment has continued for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond reasonable expectation of reconciliation," the petition states.

The one son, Benjamin C. Shaw, is 14 years old and is at present in custody of the plaintiff, the petition declares. Custody of the so nis asked.

BRIEF ILLNESS FATAL TO JAMES B. LAMBIE

Business Man and Oldest Masonic Past Master in District Dies.

RITES TO BE TOMORROW

James Baird Lambie, well-known business man and prominent in many organizations here, died yesterday at the home of the Rev. J. H. Dunham, 2100 G street northwest, after a brief illness. He was 84 years old.

Mr. Lambie had the distinction of being the oldest past master of a Masonic lodge in the District of Columbia. He served as master of Hiram Lodge, No. 10, F. A. A. M., from 1876 to 1877. He was a thirty-second-degree Mason. Besides Hiram Lodge, he held memberships in the Royal Arch Masons and the Washington Commandery, No. 1, of the Knights Templar. He was also a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia.

Coming to this city in 1865, following his discharge from the Union Army at the end of the Civil War, Mr. Lambie entered the hardware business. In 1881 he founded the James B. Lambie Hardware Co. and took an active part in the business until his retirement several years ago. He was a member of the board of directors of the company at the time of his death.

For a number of years he had been an active member of the Washington Board of Trade, and at one time served as a director of the Union Trust Co. and the Raleigh Hotel Co., Inc. He was formerly secretary of the Schneider Baking Co.

Surviving Mr. Lambie is his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Lambie.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Western Presbyterian Church, H street between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets northwest. Interment will be private.

Johnson, John B. Larner, Charles P. Light, Howard Moran, G. Percy McGlue, John Poole, E. L. Robinson, James F. Shea, F. N. Shepherd, Frank J. Stryker, Corcoran Thom, George W. White, Lloyd B. Wilson, John B. Geier and William Miller.

The active pallbearers will include Frank Bell, W. P. Benson, J. B. Bowling, J. W. Jacobs, Frank A. Johnson, Paul May, William H. Somervell and Edward E. Swan.

The services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from St. Matthew's Catholic Church. Mgr. Edward L. Buckley will officiate. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

WILLIAM C. MERTZ RITES.

Funeral to Be Held at Nevius Chapel for Man Who Died in Tulsa.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 this afternoon at Nevius Chapel for William C. Mertz, who died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Hering, in Tulsa, Okla. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

For a number of years Mr. Mertz was engaged in business in this city, and after his retirement went West to spend some time with his daughter.

Surviving are four daughters and one son, Mrs. J. C. Hering, Mrs. S. S. Grogan, Mrs. C. J. Brooks, Miss Edith Y. Mertz and Richard Mertz.

Crater Held Planning Return to New York

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The New York Herald-Tribune said today there were reports in high Tammany circles that Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater, missing since August 6, was planning to return to the city.

Confronted with the rumor, Ralph O. L. Fay, Mrs. Crater's attorney, was quoted as saying: "I have become shock proof since I entered this case. Nothing that might happen would surprise me. He may return. There is nothing to prevent him."

'AIRPLANE FAVORED ON OCEAN MAIL LINE

more than 500 pounds of mail in addition to the gasoline loda.

"Col. Lindbergh suggested the mail load might be increased by flying the first 50 miles with less than the full load of gasoline, accompanied by a refueling plane.

"The mail plane could then be refueled in the air, and the refueling plane come back. It is perfectly possible, but somewhat fantastic on a regular schedule. The plane for floating landing fields also seems to me fantastic."

"There has never been a dirigible that flew on schedule, day in and day out," said the Postmaster General. "The Akron has many novel features which may improve matters, and which we will all find interesting to watch.

"But my suggestion is that the lighter than air carrier prove its worth as the airplane did. Transcontinental air transport followed the railroad lines so that its passengers and mail could be put on trains during the experimetnal period.

"Let them put a dirigible on the Southern transcontinental route, from Atlanta to El Paso, say—that is easy and even, no mountains to climb, well lighted, plenty of landing fields. They may need a few mooring masts, but that probably can be arranged.

"Then when they can fly that route on schedule, it is time to talk about flying the ocean."

FINANCIERS CALLED ON VETERAN BONUS

Co.; Clarence W. Woolley, of the American Radiator Co., and Samuel W. Reyburn, of Lord & Taylor, New York.

Young, the chairman of the board of General Electric, has arranged to give his views later this week, with George E. Roberts, of the National City Bank, New York, and George Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

"The hearings could have been completed by tomorrow," said Garner, author of one pending bill. "The chairman summoned this host of financiers, and I think that the delay is totally unnecessary. Of course the financiers are against this legislation."

Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, argued that the bonus could be paid by increasing the income tax of individuals in the higher brackets. He suggested that "we put a wound stripe on the purses" of wealthy citizens who, he said, profited in the war.

Representative Brand (Democrat), Georgia, told the committee that he believed some small banks would fail if the legislation went through, but that "they would recover," through the return of better business and industry.

Representatives Clancy, of Michigan; Arentz, of Nevada, and Whitley, of New York, Republicans, joined the advocates.

Chairman Hawley inserted a letter from James Simpson, president of Marshall Fields, Chicago, recording himself "decidedly opposed" to paying the veterans. The resulting stimulus to business, Mr. Simpson thought, would be "so artificial and of such a temporary nature that it would cause inflation which would be quickly followed by a deflation."

E. C. Wagner, president of the Discount Corporation, New York, told the committee that a "book loss" of $163,000,000 had been suffered by bondholders while the cash payment plans have been under discussion. He said public utilities, railroad, municipal and corporation bonds generally would be displaced by a new issue of Government bonds.

Questioned by Representative Frear, of the committee, the witness said, however, that owners holding bonds for redemption at maturity had not suffered actual losses.

Drys Declared Planning Newspaper in New York

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Dr. Christian F. Reisner is authority for the statement that a group of prohibition leaders hope to found in New York a dry newspaper, modeled along the lines of the Boston Christian Science Monitor.

This was revealed in the course of his sermon yesterday at Broadway Temple Methodist Church, where he referred to the prophet Jeremiah as being as popular in Jerusalem as is a New York "dry" preacher who believes that nullification, and not prohibition, is the cause of the night club situation.

V. J. Evans Rites At Church Today

Masonic Bodies Will Attend Funeral Services in Epiphany.

Funeral services for Victor Justice Evans, 65 years old, patent attorney and head of the firm of Victor J. Evans & Co., who died Sunday at Emergency Hospital, following an operation, will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Church of the Epiphany. King Solomon Lodge, Scottish Rite Masons, and Almas Temple Shriners, will have charge of the services. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Evans was greatly interested in a bill which recently passed Congress, providing for patents on the discoveries of new kinds of plants and flowers.

Under the bill, plant breeders were given the same status as mechanical and chemical inventors, and Mr. Evans notified nurserymen and florists that his company would devote special attention to protecting discoverers or inventors of improvements in plant life. He wrote and published a notice in the company's magazine, "How to Obtain a Patent."

Oliver M. Moffitt Stricken at Work

Heart Attack Is Blamed in Superintendent's Death at Dairy Plant.

Oliver M. Moffitt, 63 years old, superintendent of stables at the Chestnut Farms Dairy, Twenty-sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, dropped dead yesterday afternoon while at work in the company's plant. Death was ascribed to a heart attack.

Complaining of feeling ill shortly after 3 o'clock, Mr. Moffitt was preparing to go to his home in the Plaza Apartments, Twenty-second street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and was entering the automobile of H. M. Watkins, when he suddenly fell to the ground unconscious.

Mr. Moffitt had been employed by the Chestnut Farms Dairy Co. for about four years, coming here from Indianapolis, Ind. He was a thirty-second degree Mason in Indianapolis and was well known in Masonic activities here. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Belle Moffitt, and a daughter, Mrs. Blanch Schumaker, of this city, and two sons, Gilbert and Carol Moffitt, of Indianapolis.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS CUT IN ALEXANDRIA

Strict Enforcement Credited by Chief of Police for Reduction.

ARREST TOTAL HIGHER

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Owing to the strict enforcement of traffic regulations in Alexandria, according to Police Capt. W. W. Campbell, automobile accidents were greatly reduced in January, there being but 34 as against 61 in December. There were twelve persons injured in the accidents within the city limits and two outside the city, which were investigated by the local police.

There were 323 arrests made in January, according to Capt. Campbell's report, this being an increase of 22 over the December figures. More than one-third of the total number were for violations of the dry ordinance, these totaling 131, of which 86 were for being drunk on the street, 42 for violations of the prohibition ordinance, and three for operating automobiles while drunk.

The largest number of lodgers facing no charges ever accommodated at police headquarters in any one month were taken care of in January, there being 481, of whom 313 were white and 168 colored.

The property reported lost or stolen was valued at $1,529.15, and recoveries amounted to $1,079.15. Out-of-town property valued at $100 was also recovered by the police.

There were 20 petit larceny cases during the month, of which 11 were cleared up. Three automobiles were stolen in the city, all being recovered. Two cases of housebreaking, both cleared up, were reported and one case of grand larceny which has not yet been cleared up.

Gas users in Alexandria will be supplied with a blend of natural and manufactured gas within the next ten days, according to an official of the Washington Gas Light Co., which recently acquired the Alexandria city gas plant, under the name of the Alexandria Gas Co., Inc. The natural gas will come from wells in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, it was stated. This combination, it is understood, will give a richer and better gas, and enable the company to meet the terms of its franchise, which calls for gas having a heat value of 650 B. T. U.

The schedule of drills for the Alexandria Light Infantry, officially Company I, First Regiment, Virginia National Guard, for the balance of the month, has been announced by Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, commanding, as follows:

February 9, 7:30 to 8 o'clock, physical training; 8 to 8:30, nomenclature of the rifle; 8:30 to 9, close order drill.

February 16, 7:30 to 8 o'clock, bayonet instruction; 8 to 8:30, riot duty; 8:30 to 9, close order drill.

February 24, 7:30 to 9 o'clock, marksmanship.

The shifting of the last drill date in February from February 23 to February 24 is due to the fact that the annual banquet of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons will be held in the armory on that night.

J. Fred Birrell, who has represented the City of Alexandria in the State Legislature for the last two terms, announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for reelection, subject to the Democratic primary which will be held in August. The general election will be in November, but the Democratic nomination here is equivalent to election. No other candidates have announced themselves so far.

The Grillbortzer Floral Co., of Alexandria, has been awarded the contract for planting 25,000 English ivy plants at Mount Vernon, these being in connection with the work of beautifying the Mount Vernon memorial boulevard, which will be started May 1. The contract was awarded by the Department of Agriculture.

Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the courts, during the month of January collected $609.91 for the State from the taxes on deeds, wills and suits. He issued 65 marriage licenses during the month.

A meeting of the city school board will be held in the council chamber of the city hall at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Dr. W. Lewis Schaffer, city health officer, has stated that 20 mild cases of influenz have been reported to his office, all of which are on the road to recovery. A number of cases of grippe have been reported by physicians, and these are said to be on the increase.

The fire loss in the city in January was estimated by Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., at $3,051, the value of the buildings in which the fires occurred being placed at $474,025. There were 41 alarm during the month, of which 36 were local, one general and four suburban. The department worked four and one-sixth hours, and an average of 34 men responded to the alarms.

Funeral services for Thomas Buckingham Martin, who died Sunday at the Alexandria Hospital, will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Cunningham funeral home, by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and interment will be at Oakton, Fairfax County.

Mr. Martin, who was a retired farmer, lived with his son, John Martin, a rural delivery carrier on Route No. 4. Besides the son, a daughter, Mrs. Hattie C. Dyder, survives, as well as several sisters and one brother.

Walter T. Cardwell, $100; St. Marys Church, $100; John D. Foley, $100; John R. Pinkett, $100; George M. Emmerich, $100; R. W. Robinson, $100; Miss Mary G. Riley, $100; Mrs. Elsie C. Flotsam Thought Part Of Missing Tradewind

(Associated Press.)

Possibility that wreckage of the ill-fated airplane Tradewind had been sighted floating in the Atlantic near the Azores was seen yesterday in a message received at the Navy Department from the steamship Youngstown.

The Youngstown passed gray-colored wreckage resembling a section of an airplane wing, about 275 miles northwest of Horta, on the Island of Fayal, Azores. The Tradewind, with Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. McLaren aboard, left Bermuda January 10 headed for the Azores and never arrived.

Progress of Democrats To Be Shouse's Subject

(Associated Press.)

Recent progress of the Democratic party will be the subject of an address by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, at Miami, Fla., Friday night.

The announcement, made yesterday by the Democratic national committee, said the speech will be broadcast. Members of the Florida Legislature have been invited to attend.

In addition to deciding whether Bishop Cannon will be permitted to be present when the committee hears the evidence—the sessions will be held behind closed doors—the committee of twelve will also decide whether he will be permitted to make a statement regarding the charges.

Hearing of the charges against Bishop Cannon has aroused intense interest within the Methodist Church, chiefly because of the prominent part which he has played in the prohibition and political work of the church in recent years and also because never before has a bishop of the church been required to submit to such a procedure.

NEW BORLAND LAW IS PASSED BY HOUSE

provements out of the general revenues of the District rather than to assess one-half of the cost against owners of homes along streets improved, they said.

The new measure provides for a new assessment of all property levied against in the last three years under the Borland law. Although this suggestion by District officials was at first hailed as a very generous provision for the benefit of property owners, study of the scheme disclosed the fact that it was proposed by District officials to make the new law retroactive so that they could assess anew all property levied against in the last three years and thus collect thousands of assessments which are invalid in the light of court decisions against the existing law.

Many Saving Clauses.

Assessment against abutting property owners for street improvements on a front-foot basis is the backbone of the measure sponsored by the Commissioners and passed by the House. To get around criticism of discrimination sustained by the courts in contests against the present law, however, the measure is filled with saving clauses and alternatives, which would limit the total assessment not to exceed a percentage of assessed value, and makes allowance for comparison of assessments on total areas of lots on which an assessment was laid, all designed to safeguard the measure against successful attack on the same grounds which were successfully advanced against the existing law.

Woman Dies in Grocery.

Taken suddenly ill in a grocery store on Upshur street northwest near Second street, Mrs. Susan Hosick, 74 years old, of Taylor street northwest near Second street, died before a physician could reach her. Death was caused by a heart attack, it was said by the Emergency Hospital doctor who pronounced her dead.

"I am so happy . . that the last pimple is gone"

You, too, may be proud of a clear skin!

A CLEAR SKIN, and of even greater value to you—a strong organic vitality—comes only with the right number of red-blood-cells.

Whatever treatment you may use for your complexion, remember the important fact that natural beauty—a clear skin and a rose-petal complexion—comes from within.

More red-blood-cells and of the right quality! That's the answer to a sallow complexion and to pimples and boils. The way to regain the red-blood-cells is to take S.S.S.—the Tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up! Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

Blood is life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

Enlarged blood picture shows lack of deficiency in red-blood-cells.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

Pimples and blackheads disappeared

Mrs. Mary E. Parker, Bahama, N. C., writes: "Because of a rundown condition my appetite was poor. I felt tired in the mornings and was troubled with pimples and blackheads. Red bumps came on my face once or twice monthly. After taking S.S.S. the pimples and blackheads disappeared and my skin became clear. I do not feel tired upon rising in the mornings. I had tried a number of medicines but S.S.S. is the one that helped me."

Complexion cleared up beautifully

Miss Mary Rank, Clearwater, N. Y., writes: "My face was blemished with many pimples. No treatment I used did them any good. I also had boils. My appetite was poor. My weight was off and I felt nervous. After taking S.S.S. my complexion cleared up beautifully. My appetite improved. I now rest well at night and am greatly benefited in every way. Because S.S.S. helped me I think it is the best blood medicine!"

THE HOUSE IS MASTER.

It was to be expected that insurgent Republicans would come to the relief of Democratic senators who have made the blunder of threatening to force an extra session of Congress unless the House and President agree to destroy the American Red Cross and substitute a Federal dole system. These Democratic senators are bitterly upbraided by Democratic newspapers throughout the country. The leading Democratic newspapers warn senators of that party that the political attacks upon President Hoover under the pretense of demanding a dole are destroying the chances of Democratic success in 1932. As the unfairness and political motives of the attacks become apparent the public swings strongly to the support of President Hoover, who insists upon holding the Government to its constitutional functions and who stoutly defends the Red Cross.

Senator Borah's desire to bring about an extra session of Congress was made known by him several weeks ago. He announced at that time that he would not filibuster to force an extra session. Yesterday he changed ground again, and gave notice that he would join the filibuster. His excuse for blocking the operations of the Government is that the House and the President are inhuman monsters who will not help to relieve human suffering. He is driven by this argument into making an attack upon the Red Cross. The millions of Americans who support the Red Cross and who know what it has done are competent to form their own opinion of the fairness of Senator Borah's attack.

It was a timely speech, as a help to the Democrats who are playing politics at the expense of human misery. Senator Borah is always at his best when he is in reverse. It is only when he is forced to be consistent that he becomes tongue-tied. His eloquent departure from his own commitments elicited "spontaneous" applause from Democratic senators who had been advised of his decision to repudiate his recent assurance that he would not engage in a filibuster against the measures required to maintain the Government.

Yesterday he was opposed to a filibuster; today he favors it. Where will he be tomorrow? Don't ask him, for he doesn't know.

No doubt other insurgents will join the Democrats in this desperate political adventure. Let them go ahead. The Senate is not in control of the situation. The fury and bombast of the Senate majority are wasted breath, effective only in increasing public resentment and disgust.

The House is master of the Senate, because the House is attending to the public business. It is standing against a raid upon the Treasury, conceived for political purposes and carried on under the false pretense of relief legislation. Not a vote will be changed in the Senate because of Senator Borah's enlistment in the ranks of filibusters. Votes will be made against him in the House by his utterance.

When politicians run amuck anywhere in the Government there is a power to thrust them back into their place. The Senate is temporarily demoralized because the majority are deluding themselves with the notion that they can make their political schemes effective by law. The House and the President never have been and can not now be coerced by the Senate. A power greater than them all is massing behind the House and President Hoover.

HELP THE COMMUNITY CHEST.

In the two days remaining of the 1931 drive, Community Chest officials face the task of raising an additional $457,000 if the quota of $1,950,154.40 is to be reached.

The Community Chest has proved its efficiency in the two years of its existence in Washington. Charity now is on a business-like basis. The charitable organizations of the city, through membership in the chest, are able to prosecute their tasks, relieved of worry as to where the money they require may be obtained. Their funds are raised at considerably less cost than they were formerly when hit-or-miss, each-charity-for-itself methods prevailed. The public, too, is benefited through the chest, in that it can make its contributions to charity on a business-like basis. In place of numerous bothersome and questionable solicitations for funds, there is but one, and it is genuine. There is no misappropriation of Community Chest funds, and no false appeals to deceive the charitable.

The Community Chest faces a doubly difficult task in the coming months. More than ever the community must depend upon charitable and social service agencies to minister to the wants of those affected adversely by current conditions. The public, recognizing this fact, has responded generously to the appeal. To date, the chest has had more givers and has collected a larger sum than in the corresponding period of last year. But the need is greater this year, and the budget is necessarily larger. A generous response will have to be made in the next two days if the chest is to be filled.

Washington should rally to the appeal today and tomorrow. The sick, the underprivileged, the unemployed, the underclothed and the hungry must be ministered to in the coming twelve months. Washington can give the additional $457,000 that is required to fill the chest. The public will not fail in the hour of need.

THE DEVIL'S SPADEWORK.

In calculating the menace of communism to the United States one significant factor is frequently overlooked. It is absurd to suppose that the country could ever be intellectually converted to the doctrines of Lenin. But the reds never plan on converting people. Even in Russia the people are not converted to communism, but they fell victims to the Communists because the established economic and political order had been broken down.

No Communist holds a seat in Congress, but the Socialists on Capitol Hill are playing into the hands of Communist agitators on the outside. Under pretense of championing the cause of the people these Socialists are trying to break down the structure of government. Their aim is not revolution, but reform. They do not want communism. But if their breaking down proposals should win the country would be unwittingly opening the door to a Communist prerevolution.

It may be recalled that the French Revolution was begun by men of moderate convictions. But the terrorists rushed in and took affairs out of the hands of the moderates. The Russian revolution went through the same process. The bolshevists had little or no part in overthrowing the czar. But when once the government was upset the reds seized the government, threw out the moderate Socialists and have ever since held Russia in subjection by terrorism. Only a small faction is necessary to enslave a nation under such circumstances.

Communist propaganda in this country is less destructive than the campaign of the Socialists to upset American traditions, to change the system of government and to write radical measures upon the statute books. Without realizing their own mischief these forces are paving the way for communism in America. If they had a free hand they would so weaken the structure of republican government that the Communists would have no trouble in upsetting it.

The Communists believe this is a propitious time to undermine the economic and political structure of this country. They are not trying to take over control of the Government, but to foment strikes, to arouse the unemployed, to add to the general unrest and break down the system under which the people live. The Socialists, the advocates of government-ownership and the radical reformers are contributing to the same end. Socialists, by playing into the hands of the reds, are doing the devil's spadework.

BRITAIN'S GRIP UPON INDIA.

The fact that Winston Churchill and Stanley Baldwin have come to a parting of the ways over the question of independence for India may foreshadow a general division of English opinion with respect to this question. Despite the air of solidarity presented by the British delegates to the round table conference, many persons in England do not believe that India is capable of maintaining the autonomy granted in the proposed constitution. At this early stage there is, of course, no disposition among Britishers to oppose the plan, but if, by any chance, it should appear that the constitution was about to be given effect another story would be presented. India is the last great British possession. It is by no means certain that Great Britain is ready or willing to relax its grip upon India. The split between Churchill and Baldwin proves as much.

It may be doubted, however, that negotiations over the proposed constitution will reach the stage at any time in the near future when a division of English opinion will be precipitated. Gandhi and his followers are the present obstacles that stand in the way of the adoption of the constitution. The leader of the Swarajists in a manifesto just made public summons India's millions to fresh disobedience looking toward complete and absolute independence which the proposed constitution does not grant. The movement is to continue unabated and the boycott against foreign wares is not to be lifted. It now appears that the Gandhi group will not participate in the proposed second round table conference to be held in India upon the return of the London delegates unless the latter agree beforehand to recognize the demands of the working committee.

The Indian delegates to the round table conference will return stanch supporters of the proposed constitution. A clash between them and Gandhi in the appeal to Indian public opinion appears to be inevitable. There need be no doubt as to who will emerge victorious should this clash occur. While the delegates were in London making concessions to the British Gandhi was in prison at Poona as a martyr. He can discredit the Indian delegates if it suits his purpose to do so.

SECURE IN THEIR JOBS.

The announcement by 25 large corporations that the jobs of 500,000 men on their pay rolls are secure should have a stabilizing influence upon business. The fear of working men that they might be added to the list of unemployed has unquestionably been an important factor in the business slump. If their confidence in the future is restored, and their purchasing power is maintained, a long step toward recovery will have been taken.

Some large corporations have given additional assurance that wages will not be cut. They realize that the domestic market for their goods must be maintained, and that can only be done by the maintenance of high wage scales. These announcements inject an element of confidence into the business and industrial situations that has apparently been lacking for months. If every industry would make a similar contribution, immediate improvements could be expected.

Indications are that the national income during 1930 was not much below that of the previous year, which established a record. Walter R. Ingalls reports that the national income for 1929 was $83,429,000,000, and he estimates that the figure for 1930 will be approximately $75,000,000,000. That would be a decrease of less than 10 per cent. Since prices have declined more than that, the purchasing power of the people doesn't seem to have been seriously impaired. The vast increase in savings deposits substantiates this view.

THE NAVAL PROGRAM

By Rear Admiral W. A. MOFFETT, U. S. N.,
Before the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense.

Our own history shows that we can not remain at peace merely by failing to provide forces of defense.

Under the terms of the London Treaty the United States will continue to have 135,000 tons of aircraft carrier tonnage; the Japanese 81,000, or a ratio of 5-3. Each of the nations can also place flying decks on 25 per cent of their light cruisers; namely, the United States and Great Britain, about 80,000 tons, and Japan, about 43,000. I hope that the coming building program will result in the authorization of the unutilized tonnage for aircraft carriers, namely, 55,200 tons; and that we will take advantage of the placing of landing decks on 25 per cent of the cruiser tonnage. These vessels will be, I believe, the forerunners of the warship of the future, namely, vessels which will carry airplanes on landing decks for taking-off and landing, as well as guns. An airplane is a long-range gun used also as a scout, a torpedo plane, and an observation platform, and we are coming more and more to regard them in this light.

The Navy Department has recommended and the President has approved a moderate program for the first year toward building the ships, including their aircraft, that will give us parity in naval power with Great Britain and 5-3 with Japan, provided we build up to the treaty allowance. The program includes 280 airplanes for the ships. Bills to carry out this modest program have been reported out favorably in both the House and the Senate by the naval affairs committees. Little interest is evidenced in them by the public or the newspapers—or, at least, very little compared with the tremendous interest taken in the London conference and later in the debate in the Senate—and the same influences that opposed an adequate Navy in 1914 are opposing the present program.

We all know that organized influence is at work, under cover, of course, to defeat this program. I need not tell this group of the methods being used to obstruct and delay. The activities of those who do not or will not see the necessity for national defense as peace insurance as well as national safety are not always carried on in the open. They masquerade in many guises, such as urging other measures and bills, so that nothing can nor will be done for national defense in this session if they can prevent it. These legislative measures that are urged obstructively before the naval building bill may be important, but nothing is more important than national defense and safety.

Even when we secure authorization from Congress for the program, if that is allowed to go through, only half of the battle will be won, and we must all work harder still to secure the necessary appropriations before we can start building the ships. If we do not secure this authorization and some appropriation from this Congress to start the naval building program this year it will mean that no start will be made until another year—a year from July next. Congress will adjourn March 4 and there will be no regular session until next December. We will again next year face a similar situation to the present one. Even if the program is authorized by the next Congress and the money appropriated no start could be made until after July 1, 1932. This will mean that none of the ships will be finished when the next limitation of naval armaments conference meets in 1935 as provided in the London naval treaty.

We are the richest and most powerful Nation in the world potentially, but we are not actually so unless we have adequate force in ships, arms, aircraft and trained personnel to back up any position we may take.

No Gain, So Far.

SHORT CIRCUITS.

There's a Limit.

Salem Evening News: It is now proposed to have traffic regulations for pedestrians. It may become necessary for us walkers to blow horns and carry lights, but some of us will kick if we have to appear before a traffic board and secure a license before we are allowed to walk in the streets.

Not Done in Russia.

Aberdeen World: What would Russia have done with the "counter revolutionaries" who demonstrated in the National Capital as Congress resumed its sessions? Stood them against a wall and shot them, is the answer. In this country they are merely dispersed.

Death Valley Park.

Los Angeles Times: A movement is on foot in Southern California to have Death Valley declared a national park. Sunset at Dante's View, with its long shadows like purple dragons creeping down out of the canyons, rivals even Grand Canyon for sublimity.

Out in Oregon.

Springfield Sun: It is reported that a flapper bootlegger in Oregon was carrying moonshine in her bloomers. This ought to give some one a chance to revive that old joke about a kick in the pants!

And the Coast Guard.

Toledo Blade: Mussolini doesn't want war, Japan doesn't want war, Germany doesn't want war, France doesn't want war, the United States abhors war. It might be well to watch Switzerland.

No Bargain.

New York Evening Post: One of the lesser movie officials insists that the 10-cent motion picture will soon be with us again. The trouble is, however, that they'll continue to charge $1 for it.

This Is Another Year.

New York Post: The Boston Red Sox will start South next month, according to the sport pages. They can't get any farther South than eighth place, can they?

Noisy Golf.

Arkansas Gazette: Writer says if you watch a game, it's pastime; and if you play it, it's recreation. And if you hear it, it's golf.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

KNOWN AND UNKNOWN.

Oh, we have mastered time and space
And mighty deeds we do.
Around the world our words may race,
Our ships may sail the blue;
But helpless still we seem to be Against the tide of misery.

Oh, we have conquered much, no doubt,
But mortals still endure
Until their lives are fretted out
Grave ills we can not cure.
Though speech around the world we send,
The imbecile we can not mend.

Each day some forward step we take,
Some goal our courage gains,
Some new discovery we make,
But cancer still remains!
And helpless at a sufferer's bed
The baffled doctor shakes his head.

Though he has chartered moons and suns
And trapped the lightning's force,
The streptococcus germ still runs
Its devastating course.
Pain and despair at every turn
Cry loudly: "Man has much to learn!"

Against a building strong and tall
The work of many hands
And men's discoveries, great and small,
A little blind boy stands.
Thus strangely side by side are shown
What's known to man, and what's unknown.

To Make Willie Useful, You Merely Harness His Desire to Prove His Muscle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE easiest way to accomplish anything is to cooperate with nature.

The natural way is the way ordained by the all-wise Creator of the universe.

And the ordained way is a pleasant way.

It is necessary to remember that if you should influence your fellow men.

Men are by nature selfish. For good or ill—whether created from dust in the twinkling of an eye or created from dust by the slow process of evolution—they are creatures of free will.

And the all-wise Creator knew that a creature possessed of free will would not do anything a second time unless the first experience afforded him pleasure or profit.

Thus it happens that the things man should do for his own good or the good of the race are things he desires to do.

Desire is the one supreme motive that overcomes all others. It is the mainspring of man's existence.

And whether he is making love or discovering a continent or sacrificing himself for the good of others, it is desire that prompts him. He does the thing that gratifies him—the thing that affords him pleasure by ministering to his senses, his appetites, his vanity or his self-respect.

Even when he makes sacrifices for those he loves, he does the thing he most desires to do. His very unselfishness is selfish.

It should be obvious, then, that the one sure way to influence a boy is to take advantage of his inborn inclination to do the thing that affords him a profit.

You may influence him by means of fear, but some day desire will overcome fear. You may influence him by means of a sense of duty, but desire will overcome that, also, for desire is inherent and a sense of duty is something acquired.

If you would make him clean and courageous and honorable, you must find a way to make cleanliness, courage and honor seem desirable to him.

By logic or example you must prove these qualities so profitable to him that he will desire them to gratify his pride.

If you can't do that, all your precepts and preachments are so much empty air.

To say that a boy has been "given the right training," when he hasn't been taught to desire the things that are right, is neither true nor sensible. It is bosh.

Democratic Blunder.
New York Times.

Nothing is more harmful in the public mind than a tradition of blundering at a critical moment, of misreading the signs of the times, of running off on issues that lead nowhere except to disaster, and of failing to convince the mass of sober citizens that it is stable and trustworthy. Under such a handicap the Democratic party has long labored, and just now seems bent on making it heavier. * * * As a final means of disgusting the country, the Democrats in the Senate propose, if they can not get the appropriations they desire, to force an extra session of the new Congress. In other words, they threaten to prevent by brute strength the passage of bills providing the money to carry on the Government. This is a kind of midsummer madness which only the Democrats could exhibit in midwinter. To put forward their demands and argue for them as best they can, and then to submit to the majority, whatever it may be, and to permit the orderly transaction of the public business, would be one thing; but it is quite another, and wholly indefensible, to take the Senate by the throat and swear to strangle the life out of it if it does not yield to the program of the minority. This is a position not only extreme in itself, but one of extreme peril for the Democratic party. The sooner its leaders at Washington retreat from it and show themselves ready to accept a reasonable settlement of the whole dispute, without further disturbing the country and terrifying manufacturers and business men, the better it will be for their reputation for sanity and steadiness.

Senate and Red Cross.
New Orleans Times-Picayune.

The threat of hostilities between the Senate and the American Red Cross startles the average American, who can see no necessity for such a conflict and no good to come out of it. The Red Cross-Senate controversy appears to be a by-product of the Senate's row with President Hoover. The elder statesmen suspect that in refusing, on behalf of the Red Cross, the Senate's proffer of $25,000,000 of "Federal aid," Chairman John Barton Payne is merely following the President's lead and espousing the President's cause in the earlier quarrel. Their irritation over Judge Payne's stand is sharpened by that suspicion. It finds expression in the threats uttered during a Senate committee hearing Wednesday to the effect that Congress will find or set up other relief agencies to distribute the $25,000,000 the Senate has voted for Nation-wide relief.

Democrats May Be Blamed.
New York World.

The Democrats are no more eager than their opponents for the assembling of the new Congress before next December. There is a danger that they may be saddled with the responsibility for the new session, and that if business should then continue uncertain the blame might be laid at their door.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Senate Investigation of Alabama Election Must Follow Formal Charge of Fraud.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dispatch sent out over the country from Montgomery, Ala., regarding a resolution passed by the State Legislature with reference to charges made by Senator Heflin of "fraud and irregularities" in the November election, gives the impression that an effort is being made to cover up something in order to appease an inquiring public as to how the senatorial campaign and election were conducted in that State.

The Legislature in question is rather late in presenting its case. Senator Heflin has already informed the Senate and the country as to the conditions which have brought about what his enemies call his "defeat."

Considering the nature of the charges made by Senator Heflin it would seem to be due the citizens of Alabama and the country at large, as well as in the interest of good government, that this matter be thoroughly investigated by the Senate in order to ascertain the facts. The Senate can not afford to delay taking immediate cognisance of the situation, in accordance with the Norris resolution.

The attack on Senator Heflin, embodied in the resolution of the Alabama Legislature would seem to indicate a desire to divert public attention from the real situation, and this has, naturally, aroused suspicion on the part of citizens generally. Senator Heflin in recent speeches in the Senate has conveyed a clear understanding of the state of affairs during the campaign and the manner in which the election was conducted.

Many who have watched the situation in Alabama during the past several months believe that, aside from personal animosity toward Senator Heflin, it is a case of bold political juggery to supplant him in the Senate.

Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Smith, of Illinois, were considered as not properly elected to the United States Senate. What about Bankhead, of Alabama? W. H. F.

Protest Against Destruction of Beautiful Old Buildings in Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me to heartily applaud the intelligent action of the National Woman's Party in its effective plea to save its beautiful old colonial mansion on Capitol Hill from the destructive vandalism of miscalled progress, in the Government's building program.

I am unable to understand the type of legislative mind that fails to see the economic value to Washington of our few surviving beautiful and historic buildings, if not their esthetic value.

Another case in point is the old Supreme Court Building at Second and B, just southeast of the Library of Congress, another charming and perfect specimen of colonial architecture. This, too, is doomed to give way to a few more acres of monotonous pillars unless its friends can save it. Nearby eyesores of filling stations, chain stores, mediocre buildings and billboards are carefully preserved, but this valuable, rare, historic, wisteria-vined house, a joy for all to look upon, must give way, rather than modify a ruthless "building program" with the slightest intelligence in order to preserve it.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., has donated $5,000,000 to Williamsburg for the restoration of buildings such as these. Every year tourists spend millions of dollars to visit Mount Vernon, Monticello, Charlottesville and the few other sites in this country in which a few relics of mellow colonial charm still persist. Failing to find them here, they spend even more millions abroad to look at old buildings and to find the atmosphere of more tranquil other days.

Meanwhile we ram ahead here in our blind, stupid policy of senseless destruction of our few remaining beautiful historic houses, determined apparently to make Washington as uniformly uninteresting and unattractive as every other commonplace raw American city.

MRS. CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.

Big Reduction of Losses by Robbery and Theft on the Railroads.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was not so long ago when train robberies were common occurrences, when railway travelers were frequently victimized by bandits, card sharps and pickpockets, and when freight, express and mails were plundered freely. In 1920, losses from robberies on the railroads of the country amounted to approximately $13,000,000, and by 1929 these losses were reduced to less than $800,000. In 1929 52,000,000 carloads of merchandise were handled by the railroads, and the loss through theft averaged only 1½ cents a carload.

The 10,000 special agents employed by the railroads of the United States for the purpose of protecting their patrons' goods while in transit are responsible for this immense decrease in personal property loss. These men should be commended for the splendid work they are doing to protect the public. R. S. K.

Comptroller General Should Probe Nye Committee's Expense Account.

To the Editor of The Washington Post—Sir: In your editorial under the caption "The Nye Expense Account," in today's issue of your paper, you call upon the Comptroller General to comply with the law as found in section 53, chapter 1, title 31 of the Code of Laws of the United States. This is a fine demand and should be met at once by this officer of the Government.

If you will look at the opinion rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of United States vs. Lee, 106 U. S. 196 (Arlington National Cemetery Case), you will find the following apt words:

"No man in this country is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All officers of the Government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law, and must obey it."

EDMOND G. FLETCHER.

COLOMBIAN DEATHS IN ELECTION NOW 27

Unofficial Reports Say List Will Be Larger; 21 Are Given Treatment.

LIBERAL GAINS CLAIMED

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—At least 27 persons were reported killed and 21 wounded in yesterday's congressional elections, despite every possible precaution against disorders.

Unofficial reports asserted that many more than this number had died, principally in the Cartagena area, but these could not be confirmed, and the government held to its official list of 6 killed and 14 wounded throughout the country.

Election feeling was bitter throughout the republic and 50 persons were killed in the campaign preceding the balloting.

As measures of precaution the authorities banned sales of alcoholic beverages from Friday until tomorrow, forbade train and motor travel election day, kept troop trains in readiness to go to any outbreak, and required each voter to dip his fingers in indelible ink which will last two weeks. This was to prevent plural voting.

The official results will not be known until Thursday, but the newspaper Mundo al Dia stated today that the Liberals—President Enrique Olaya Herrera's party—and the Conservatives will be practically balanced in the Senate.

Hitherto the Conservatives held the edge.

PUBLIC WILL ATTEND TRIAL OF GEN. BUTLER

Butler is now thrown on the motion-picture screen here there is loud applause, and every time that a picture of Secretary of State Stimson is shown there are cat calls and boos. The State Department head made a profound apology to Premier Mussolini the day that Gen. Butler was ordered court-martialed.

It is a fact that there are many high officials who believe that a blunder was committed when Gen. Butler was ordered court-martialed.

Incident Is Forgotten.

"A reprimand would have been enough," said one. "That's all they gave Admiral Sims when he made that 'blood is thicker than water' speech in London. In the Butler case Mussolini, having received an apology, has said that, so far as he is concerned, the incident is 'forgotten.' In my opinion, he would have been just as well satisfied had Butler been reprimanded. Then the whole affair would have been concluded. Instead, the country is now looking forward to a sensational trial in which even worse things may be said about Mussolini."

Naval officers who are asked to make a guess as to what will happen to Gen. Butler at his trial in almost every instance predict that all he will get will be a reprimand.

"You can't kick out a man who has two Congressional Medals of Honor," one of them said. "Oh, you could, of course. What I mean to say is, that it isn't likely that you would."

Naval Law Quoted.

In announcing yesterday that Gen. Butler will be tried in Philadelphia, Secretary Adams made public the naval law governing open or closed courts-martial. It reads:

"The sessions of courts-martial shall be public, and in general all persons, except such as may be required to give evidence, shall be admitted. The accused himself may expressly waive his right to a public trial.

"In some cases where it may seem desirable that certain classes of spectators, such as women, children and others should be excluded during the trial, the court, when convened by the Secretary of the Navy, or the convening authority, in other cases, should communicate with the Secretary of the Navy requesting permission therefor and giving a full statement of the reasons. It is proper at any time for the court to advise spectators of such classes as the above to withdraw on account of the nature of the testimony anticipated."

It is known that Gen. Butler favors an open trial.

Clarence Darrow Asked To Aid in Butler Defense

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Webster Powell, executive secretary of the Philadelphia branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, today wired Clarence Darrow in New York asking whether he would associate himself in the defense of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler in his court-martial.

Powell said he had wired Darrow after consulting other members of the executive committee of the Philadelphia branch of the Union.

It was decided to offer legal help to Gen. Butler, Powell said, on the theory that his remarks in reference to Premier Mussolini were made at a private meeting as a private citizen, and not as an official of the Government.

Officials May Ask Life Term for Famous Flier

Madrid, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—It was reported today that the government is prepared to ask a sentence of life imprisonment for Ramon Franco, distinguished aviator now a refugee in France, for his part in the unsuccessful revolution of last December.

Although he and several other rebel fliers are now outside Spain it is planned to court-martial them here nevertheless. At the same time several other revolutionary leaders now in prison will be tried. The court-martial probably will sit this month.

'Roxy,' With 'Gang,' Coming Thursday

Appearance Here to Assist Fund for Chapel at Hospital.

On Thursday S. L. Rothafel, better known to thousands as "Roxy," will desert the microphone, which has made his voice known throughout the country, for a personal appearance with his "Gang" at Constitution Hall, under the auspices of the Grey Ladies of Walter Reed Hospital, in support of the Memorial Chapel, which is under construction.

Assisting Roxy and such members of his "gang" as Beatrice Belkin, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Patricia Bowman, Harold Van Duzee, "Wee Willie" Robyn and the Roxy male quartet, will be Mme. Schumann-Heink and a symphony orchestra of 35 pieces.

The Washington engagement is part of a tour of 40 cities which Roxy is making in the interest of charity, the proceeds of the engagement in each city being given to further the work of organizations similar to the Grey Ladies.

Miss Bonfield's Ouster Sought by Labor Group

Liverpool, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Resignation of Miss Margaret Bonfield, minister of labor, was demanded by some delegates to the Lancashire conference of the Independent Labor party today because of her alleged attempt to force unemployed mill girls into domestic service under a threat of losing the dole.

E. Sandham, Labor member of Parliament for Kirkdale, assailed Miss Bondfield and declared that it was not Labor's business to perpetuate a system under which rich women with no children could employ three or four servants, while working-class wives struggled unaided.

Leader in Church Needs Long Rest

Archbishop of Canterbury Is Still Confined to His Bed.

London, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—It will be a long time before the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury, who was stricken with a severe neuralgic disorder last month, is able to resume his activities.

He so informed the church assembly today in a message expressing regret that he would be unable to preside at its sessions.

His doctor's opinion, which he included in the message, showed that the archbishop was still confined to bed, considerably exhausted by his illness, and that a long rest is imperative.

H. H. Hartman Returns To Work After Illness

Harleigh H. Hartman, legal member of the Public Utilities Commission, was back at his office yesterday after a few days' illness and was resuming his study of the petition the commission ordered Corporation Counsel William W. Bride to draft for the modification of the electric rate consent decree.

Without setting any date, Mr. Hartman said that he expected to complete the study within the next several days. As soon as the document is approved, it will be filed immediately by Mr. Bride in the equity division of the District Supreme Court.

Cuba May Suspend Guarantees Again

President May Not Invoke Drastic Act Unless Necessary.

Havana, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The Cuban Senate is expected to give its authorization soon to indefinite suspension of constitutional guarantees by President Machado. The 30-day suspension voted in December expires on Wednesday and the lower house already has approved the indefinite suspension.

Government officials are quoted as saying the president would not renew the suspension immediately, but would act only if circumstances made it advisable.

It was indicated today that two or three weeks more would elapse before the Senate enacts the new press law imposing certain restrictions upon Cuban newspapers. The daily papers, El Pais and Havana American, have not yet been permitted to resume publication and three weekly journals also remain closed.

Bomb Materials Found By Argentine Officers

La Plata, Argentina, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Police today discovered two large bundles and a trunk of explosives and materials for bomb manufacture on the railway station platform here.

They believed it to have been left there by anarchist terrorists who planned a reprisal for the execution of the Anarchists De Giovani and Scarfo.

FAMILY MEDICINES.

THE case against the family medicine chest ranks well up with the case for it. In New York State, outside of New York City, 22 children died from drugs picked up somewhere around the home. Some of them resulted from childish voyages of discovery into the family medicine chest. Some of them were caused by medicines which belonged in the family medicine chest if they belonged in the house at all but somehow they had been left around.

Poisonous medicines are safer in the chest than they are outside but, on the other hand, having a medicine chest in the house is a temptation to keep drugs on hand and sometimes people forget to put medicines back. Of the household remedies strychnine is very much the most dangerous.

The 22 deaths in upper New York were distributed as follows: Strychnine, 12; stearate of zinc, 2; kerosene, 2; arsenic, 1; compound of cathartic pills, 1; gasoline, 1; grippe tablets, 1; muriatic acid, 1; turpentine, 1. One other child died from eating night shade berries, probably gathered for use in making a homemade medicine. The arsenic was in rat poison. The stearate of zinc was in dusting powder on a baby.

The great improvement in the last five years indicates that the danger will be gone by the end of another five years. In the preceding three years, in the same territory, there were 80 fatalities among children 5 years of age and under. Of these accidents about one-half resulted from the taking of pills and other medicines containing strychnine.

After all, upper New York State is only a small section, and the total population of the country is several times that of that region. Let us say that 100 young children are killed yearly by taking medicines that are left within their reach, and that one-half of these deaths are due to strychnine poisoning. The statement would not be far wrong. If parents feel they want a family medicine chest they will do well to see to it that no tonic, cough medicine, laxative pill or any other mixture containing strychnine finds its way therein.

PENNY IN STOMACH.

Mrs. J. L. M. writes: My 4-year-old child swallowed a penny one year ago. She has a pain in her stomach and vomits occasionally. Will an X-ray picture show whether the penny is still in her? If it is, what shall we do?

REPLY.

X-ray pictures should show the penny if it is still in the abdomen. They would show its location.

Let a surgeon decide what to do, if anything, on the basis of what the pictures show and on whether or not there is an obstruction.

WARTS CAN BE REMOVED.

Miss J. J. writes: I have many warts about my hands and face.

REPLY.

Some warts appear to be due to microbes of some sort and are catching. Others are not. Where there are many warts they are apt to be of the infective variety. They do no special harm and maybe your beau prefers you with warts. If not, your physician can remove them.

Royal Visitors Arrive Friday; Fetes Planned

Milford-Havens Will Be Guests of Mrs. Thomas for Week-End.

ADDING considerable zest to the midseason in Washington, which has been crowded with state functions, the Marquess and Marchioness of Milford-Haven, accompanied by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who has been their hostess in New York, will arrive here on Friday to spend the week-end.

They will be the guests of Mrs. William D. Thomas at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Marye, on N street. Mrs. Thomas postponed her trip to Panama until next week to be hostess to the distinguished visitors.

Many informal parties have been arranged for the Milford-Havens and Mrs. Vanderbilt. Among them is a small dinner on Friday night by Mrs. Thomas at her home. The Minister of Roumania, Mr. Davila, will entertain for them at a dinner and dance the following evening at the legation.

The Marquess of Milford-Haven is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, a cousin of the Prince of Wales, and an officer of the royal navy. Lord Louis Mountbatten, who is a great favorite in this country, is his brother. The Marchioness of Milford-Haven, who was the Countess Nadjeda Torby, is a daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia. She came to this country with the Prince of Wales' party for the international polo matches in 1924. She is young, pretty and chic.

Since their arrival in New York last week they have been guests of Mrs. Vanderbilt in her tower apartment at the Sherry-Netherlands. They expect to remain in this country for two months.

Whenever Lord and Lady Mountbatten visit in New York, they are usually the guests of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. However, the honors appear to be divided in the Vanderbilt family, since the Milford-Havens were captured by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's sister-in-law.

The arrival of the Marquess and Marchioness of Milford-Haven in Washington will be a signal for assisting capital matrons to entertain the British visitors.

After being hostess to the Marquess and Marchioness, Mrs. Thomas will go to New York, preparatory to sailing February 11 for Panama to join her husband, Lieut. Comdr. Thomas, U. S. N. She will return to Washington March 10.

Morrows to Entertain At Dinner Thursday.

Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow will entertain at dinner on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon, when she was assisted by Mrs. Walter E. Hope, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Adolph Miller, Princess Margaret Boncompagni and Mrs. Percival McCeney Werlich.

The Commandant of the Army War College and Mrs. William D. Connor will be guests of honor at a dinner to be given by Mrs. Karl D. Klemm on Monday, February 16.

Last evening Mrs. Klemm entertained at dinner in honor of the Commandant of Fort Myer and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes, when Col. Reginald Foster acted as host. The color scheme of the dinner was yellow, in honor of Col. Cootes, who is of the cavalry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, who spent the week-end at the Carlton, have returned to their home in New York City.

The Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral William V. Pratt, and Mrs. Pratt will entertain at dinner Thursday evening in honor of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke.

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Mexican Ambassador, and Senora de Tellez were the guests in whose honor Lt. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim entertained at dinner last evening.

The other guests were the Minister of Switzerland and Madame Peter, Senator and Mrs Morris Sheppard, the Charge d'Affaires of Egypt and Madame Aly Ismail Bey and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Graves Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Creighton, Jr., are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart also arrived at the St. Regis yesterday for a short stay.

Senator-elect Marcus A. Coolidge has arrived in Washington from his home in Fitchburg, Mass., and is at the Carlton.

Mrs. Kroner, wife of Maj. Hayes Kroner, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Others who entertained at the luncheon yesterday included Judge and Mrs. James W. Remick, Judge Marion DeVries and Mr. and Mrs. D. Gordon Bromfield.

Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will not be at home tomorrow afternoon.

Senora de Davila, wife of the Chilean Ambassador, has canceled all social engagements owing to the death of her sister, Senora Laura Arrate de Prieto.

Mrs. Vernon West will entertain a company of 40 at luncheon today at the Shoreham.

Mr. Charles B. Lawrence, Assistant Attorney General in charge of customs, is passing some time at the Carlton, accompanied by Mrs. Lawrence. United States Attorney Hugo P. Geisler, of New York City, is also at the Carlton with Mr. Lawrence.

Mrs. Alfred Pembroke Thom has returned to Washington after a trip to Miami Beach, Fla. She went there, accompanied by Mme. Georges Thenault, wife of the assistant military attache of the French Embassy. Mme. Thenault went from Miami to Atlanta, Ga., for a visit, and yesterday left there for Palm Beach, where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment until the end of the week, when she will return to Washington.

Mme. Pavenstadt To Visit in Washington.

Mme. Pavenstadt, of New York, formerly Baroness von Sternberg, and chatelaine of the German Embassy while her late husband, Baron von Sternberg was Ambassador here, will come to Washington today to remain for several days. She will be the guest of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend at her luncheon tomorrow following the morning musicale at which the artists will be Miss Rosa Ponselle, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Miss Beatrice Harrison, English cellist. Mme. Pavenstadt will also attend the dinner given by the German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron tomorrow evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend will have as her guest also for a few days Mr. Maurice Albert Bagby, of New York, founder of the famous Bagby Concerts, which for 40 years have been patronized by New York's smart society and music lovers. Mr. Bagby has recently established a fund for artists of past fame who are no longer able to support themselves. Another guest of Mrs. Townsend will be Maestro Romano Romani, conductor and composer, who has recently completed the score of an opera written from the libretto of Racine's "Pedre," made famous on the stage by Sara Bernhardt, which will be presented during the London season at Covent Garden.

Attending School Here

Potomac Chapter, D. A. R., To Give Birthday Tea.

Invitations have been issued by the Potomac Chapter, D. A. R., for their birthday tea, on Friday afternoon, from 4 until 6 o'clock, in honor of the regent, Mrs. John Franklin Little.

The guests will include the national and State officers, State chairman, chapter regents and delegates.

Mrs. Frederic Adams Young is entertaining the following guests at the card party at the Hotel Roosevelt tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the choir of St. Stephen's and the Incarnation: Mrs. Edward Croft, Mrs. Edgar P. Haines, Mrs. Robert Lee Ettenger, Mrs. E. W. Van Meter, Mrs. Ralph Howell and Mrs. Edgar Kay.

Box Parties Planned for Reed Chapel

Notables Will Entertain Veterans at Concerts on Thursday.

Numerous box parties have been arranged for the concerts to be given on Thursday afternoon and evening at Constitution Hall for the benefit of the Memorial Chapel fund at Walter Reed Hospital. These concerts will not be broadcast. Many veterans, through the generosity of members of officialdom, who have taken boxes, will be in the audience. The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, has turned his box over to the veterans as have also Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed, Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, and Mrs. Lawrence C. Phipps, wife of Senator Phipps.

Mrs. James S. Parker, wife of Representative Parker, will have as her guests Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, Mrs. Parker W. West and Mrs. Charles J. Rhoads. Mrs. Ord Preston will entertain a company of young people for her daughter, Miss Eleanor Preston. Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong will have with her her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong.

Mrs. John Marshall and Mrs. James Elwood Jones have taken a box together. They will have as their guests the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph F. Paull, jr., of Wheeling, W. Va., and Miss Nancy Jones.

The ladies of the "Little Cabinet" group, comprising the wives of assistant secretaries, met yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel for their third luncheon of the season. There were about 18 present.

Mrs. McKee Montgomery and Mrs. George Dunn are spending the winter at the Venetian Hotel in Miami, Fla.

Dr. Henry D. Hubbard will be the speaker and guest of honor at a dinner to be given by the American Association of University Women at their clubhouse this evening. Dr. Hubbard will speak on "This Century of Science." Mrs. O. L. Veerhoff will preside at the dinner.

Mrs. George L. Walters has returned to her apartment in the Shoreham Hotel, after spending about six weeks at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Fagan, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Henry Davis Lee Marries in Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Titcomb, of Nogales, Ariz., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Bradish Titcomb, to Mr. Henry Davis Lee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee, of Washington. The ceremony took place January 27 in Nogales.

The engagement of Miss Titcomb and Mr. Lee was announced shortly before the tragic death of the latter's mother several weeks ago. Mr. Lee and his bride will make their home on Lone Mountain Ranch in the Huachuca Mountains, Cochise County, Ariz., where Mr. Lee has been living for a number of years.

Mrs. Chapline, wife of Commander Vance Duncan Chapline, U. S. N., has left Washington to join her husband in Panama.

Judge Mary O'Toole, of the Municipal Bench, will be the speaker of Sunday night's supper at the Iron Gate Inn for Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta Legal Fraternity.

The arrangements are being made by Miss Mary C. Gainey, chairman, assisted by the Misses Grace E. Collins and Margaret Shea.

Miss Rachael Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson, of Boston, will be wed to Mr. Winslow Felton, also of Boston, according to announcement.

Miss Jackson has been a frequent visitor to Washington. A close friend of Mrs. John A. Hinckley, formerly Helen Robinson, and Mrs. J. Blaise de Sibour, who was Betsy Mary Robinson, Miss Jackson was a bridesmaid at the marriages of both girls.

The wedding will take place in the spring in Boston.

Mrs. Henry W. Watson will not be at home this afternoon.

Mrs. Benjamin H. Fuller will be at home on Mondays during February at the commandant's house, Marine Barracks.

Concert Boxholder

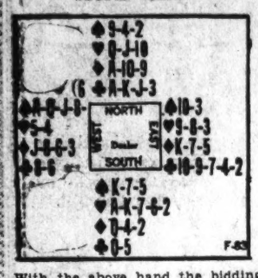
STUPID PLAY



With the above hand the bidding at auction Bridge would be: South one Heart, West one Spade and North two Hearts.

At Contract Bridge the bidding would be: South one Heart, West one Spade and North four Hearts. Instead of bidding four Hearts, North could have bid three clubs in which case South would have bid three Hearts and North four; but that hardly would be as sound as the first method.

It was played in a progressive game in a western city at thirteen tables. At all of them West led the Trey of Diamonds and at eleven of them North played the Nine, East the King and South the Deuce. East then led the Ten of Spades (the suit his partner had bid) and the adversaries saved game by taking in three Spade tricks.

THE CORRECT PLAY

Only at two tables did the Declarer appreciate the danger of the above play and make the correct one. At those two tables North won the first trick with the Ace of Diamonds and then led three rounds of trumps, South playing small on all of them. South's Queen of Clubs took trick 5 and North's Ace-King-Jack of Clubs won tricks 6, 7 and 8; South discarding two Spades. North led a Diamond to trick 9 and East won with the King; then Declarer took all the remaining tricks except one Spade and made five-odd, game and one extra trick worth 50, instead of going down one as the Declarers did at the eleven tables where they missed the point of the hand.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Two shades of blue, one vivid and the other darker, show themselves in a charming coat dress with buttons of galalith and leather belt. (Courtesy of the Maison Heim, Paris.)

Hello, everybody! Isn't it a swell day for clothes! It's lots of fun! Embroidered handbag, white gloves and white boots!
Jane Corbin

Paris, Feb. 2.

"AND unless a woman can wear three or four silver foxes, fox skins around the neck will not be smart."

Thus said a famous French furrier, with, I admit, a decided twinkle in his eye. Whereupon we all jumped on him and tried to make him tell us what woman could possibly wear three or four fox scarves, outside of an Amazon, because that kind of a neckpiece would take some wearing!

Actually, though, he says that little capelets, flat scarves that tie into chic little bow effects, jacquettes that end right at the normal waistline and even vestees of flat fur to be worn under tailored suits, will be much more popular and decidedly newer than a fur scarf for the coming season.

These tiny jacquette and capelets will be smart for evening wraps as well, in ermine and summer ermine and any kind of a soft and elegant fur which would seem to belong to evening wear.

• • • •

And then I asked him what happened to his gray dyed ermine which he launched last season • • • remember. I told you about it and how it cost three or four times as much as real ermine, because so much was spoiled in dyeing.

Well, he said that that answered my question—and that goes for chinchilla and sable, too. Elegance is as elegance pays for, nowadays, I'm afraid!

• • • •

I just adore coat dresses! They always look so smart, and rather neat, yet less severe than a tailleur, less formal than a coat! The charming Monsieur Jacques Heim claims that women like to wear coats better than dresses because coats conceal the figure, while dresses show it to advantage or disadvantage—maybe that's why I like coat dresses!

Anyhow, this is one of his models, the one sketched today, and it was different inasmuch as it employed two shades of blue for its development, and a belt of kid, which, as you know, is rare in a coat dress.

• • • •

A hassock out of empty coffee cans, a wardrobe out of a packing case and an old broom handle, a wall decoration out of brown paper, paste and silk scraps—this is just a few of the things the bachelor girls made to furnish their studio—out of nothing, 'cause they didn't have anything! And then one of them went to work in the Dare family, and we dragged all the ins and outs of furnishing a place on no par out of her, and put them all in an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make them! Send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet, for there is sure to be something in it that you can use for your own home.

• • • •

Funny what all you can do with felt. For instance, I wouldn't wear rubbers that try to be called overshoes these days, for anything, so whenever I think I might have to get wet feet in between taxis, or even when I am going to the movies, where I am sure to have cold feet, I slip a piece of cut felt into the bottom of my slippers. Oh, yes, sometimes it slips around, but who cares—you can always straighten it out again—and it's worth the trouble because of how it keeps your feet warm and even dry, if the leather soles of your shoes get wet!

• • • •

You'll often find interesting suggestions like this in Dare's weekly fashion letter in the big Sunday Washington Post.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Hines" is generally of English origin, and means "the son of Hine." The simple form "Hine" (also spelled "Hyne") is still quite common as a family name in England and on this continent. It is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "hina," meaning "the servant" and "the peasant." The forms "Hind" and "Hinde" are generally only corrupt spellings of the forms given above. However, there is evidence that they are sometimes to be taken literally, and therefore have reference, either as a nickname or sign-name, to the hind (the female of the stag). Many Irish families have adopted this name as the supposed equivalent of various Celtic names, such as "O Heidhin" and "O Meoghain." "O Heidhin" means "the descendant of Eidhean." "Eidhean" was an old personal name which may be translated "ivy" and "protection." "O Heoghain" means "the descendant of Eoghan." "Eoghan" was an old personal name meaning "well-born." A certain Robert le Hine and a John le Hyne are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Okie" (also spelled "Oakie," "Oakey" and "Oakay") is found in the earliest English records. It generally means "he who lives on the oak-island," that is, the island covered with oak trees. There is evidence that in a few cases this name is derived from the Old English "ac-haga," meaning "the oak hedge" and likewise denoting an original place of residence. The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain Jack Oky and a Nicholas Oky.

The family name "Brandes" is of Germanic origin, and means "the son of Prando." "Prando" was an old personal name based on the original form "Brandhas," which may be translated "firebrand" and "flaming sword."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The adverse periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Elderly readers, whose birthday anniversaries occur on this date, will sense a rejuvenation in the spiritual and mental sense. Do not make changes, except those which are absolutely necessary and safe. Be careful of winter colds; feverish ailments threaten.

Children born on this February 3 will have increased developments in the emotional side of their natures, and they will have an intense love of the beautiful, which may find expression in music, painting, dancing or literature. They will have fastidious tastes.

As a February 3d person, you were born with an unhappy and discontented nature. Strange as it may seem, you like being dissatisfied, and you are not capable of being happy. In short, satisfaction would get on your nerves. You do not like peace and harmony, and are never happier than when enjoying a good word fight. The sooner you knock the chip off your shoulder, the better it will be for you. Your distrustful attitude toward others does not bring out the best that is in them. You never forget an injury done to you, and are never through reaping your vengeance. The negative emotions of hate and jealousy are more pronounced in your nature than love.

You have many of the every-day virtues, such as sobriety, thrift and industry, and you usually make good in anything you attempt. Those who learn that your bark is worse than your bite, put up with your sharp tongue and pugnacious manner, for the sake of your better qualities. You are 100 per cent honest, and are neither a shirker nor a loafer; you always carry your share of a load.

If you marry your exact opposite, you may find happiness in matrimony, but it would be fatal for you to be yoke-mated with one who has a positive and an independent nature. As a parent, you will be inclined to over-strictness, and you will try to dominate your children's lives.

Successful people born February 3:

Nicholas Cooke, first State governor of Rhode Island.

Horace Greeley, journalist.

Elizabeth Blackwell, physician. First woman to receive medical diploma.

Spencer F. Baird, naturalist.

Robert Terrel Haines, actor.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

FAIR PAY.

A boy of 8 faithfully mowed the lawn and watered it for a week. It seemed to him that he had done the job quite as well as the man who had been hired to do it in the past.

At the end of the week his mother gave him 50 cents in payment. The boy was angry and disappointed. He knew that the hired man had received at least four times that sum for the same work.

"All right, mother," he said, "if you are not going to pay me what's fair, I guess I can find another job."

Ought we to pay children on the same scale as we pay adults? It would be hard to offer sensible reasons why we should not.

If the child can do a given piece of work as well as an adult, he should certainly receive the same pay. If he doe not do it quite as well, he should receive less in proportion as his efficiency is less. Any other way of reckoning must quite rightly strike him as unjust.

There are, of course, a number of things which every child should be called upon to do without thought of any pay whatsoever. It is only those tasks which are ordinarily done by hired help for which he should ever be paid at all.

The matter of paying a child fairly for his work is by no means a negligible detail. A sense of injustice reinforced by repeated experiences may well spoil a child's attitude toward the subject of working for money.

Instead of encouraging this wholly worthy ambition, it does the opposite. Later on his parents will complain that he is lazy and lacking in initiative.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me where I can purchase a pink laurel; also please tell me the botanical name of this shrub. Also what variety of shrubs combine well with laurel.

MRS. HENRY H.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to tell you the names of several firms listing laurel. Mountain laurel (kalmia latifolia) is a bushy shrub which blooms in May and early June, producing corymbs of pink and white flowers. It is used to bank in front of rhododendrons or in combination with azaleas and andromedas. Always plant laurel quite close together in order to get a massed effect rather than the effect of individual specimens.

Please tell me the name of the plant from which I am inclosing two leaves. I have had this growing in a hanging basket, where it is dying. It is hanging in a room without sun.

C. L.

Your plant is a tradescanthia. While it will grow in shade, it must have at least two hours of sun a day. It requires a great deal of moisture, and as young plants are more attractive than old ones it is best to cut off some shoots and start new plants about once in eight months. Probably your plant is too old. Better start a new one. Plant a few terminal shoots in good soil. Tradescanthia never fails to form roots.

Please tell me why my large, healthy looking fuchsia does not bloom. It has plenty of sunshine and usually water every day and has just been repotted in good rich loam. It is several months since it bloomed. Also tell me why my begonia, which does produce buds, fails to bloom. As soon as the buds are about half-grown they always fall off. Both plants are free of insects.

MRS. M. W. H.

A fuchsia likes soil composed mostly of leafmold, with plenty of sand for drainage purposes. It demands a great deal of water, both at the roots and overhead. If the drainage is perfect and the soil is light and porous, you can hardly give it too much. If you allow a fuchsia to get really dry at the roots, it will quite likely drop its leaves and buds and will receive a check from which it may not recover during the entire season. It requires frequent repotting during the early stages of its groth. It does best in an eastern window, as the early sunshine suits it better than that of midday. In a west window the leaves are likely to become curled from the heat of the afternoon sun. Your plant is likely becoming accustomed to its new surroundings and when used to a new soil and a larger pot will begin to set buds. A plant always rests for a few weeks after being moved. When a begonia begins to lose its buds it is always a case of too much or too little water, too much or too little sun or too little fresh air. A begonia does best in an eastern window.

Please tell me what to do to get rid of black flies which this winter have infested my house plants.

MRS. E. O.

Use nicotine extract in soapy water as a spray, or, if this is impractical, dip the tops of the plant into the solution.

Please tell me something about the care of an amaryllis bulb that is forming leaves. Is this a good time to transplant it?

MRS. W. C. M. C.

The care you give your amaryllis at this time is quite important, for it is upon this care that next season's bloom depends. Do not transplant it at this time. When the leaves begin to turn yellow gradually cease to water the plant; let it have but little water while resting. Keep it in a cool, dark place. This bulb does not take kindly to having its roots disturbed, so instead of moving it, scoop some of the soil out of the pot each year and replace with a rich mixture of good loam, bonemeal and cow manure.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

EGGPLANT WITH SAUSAGE CAKES.
(United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here's a good combination of flavors and for some people, a new way of using eggplant. The department suggests this method of preparing it.

1 large eggplant.
1 pound sausage meat.
¾ teaspoon salt.

Wash and pare the eggplant and cut it into cubes. Form the sausage into flat cakes and brown on both sides in a heavy skillet. Remove the sausage, pour off the excess fat, add the eggplant and salt, and let the eggplant cook in the fat for about ten minutes. Then put the eggplant in a shallow baking dish, place the sausage cakes over it, cover and cook in a medium oven for about 30 minutes, or until the eggplant is tender. Serve from the dish in which cooked.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, January 31, 1931, on shipments sold out ranged from 11.00 cents to 20.50 cents per pound and averaged 1.60 cents per pound.—Adv.

Shattered Love.

WHEN "Regan" wrote of disillusionment and the girl who asked him why he was so "slow," he started the men to "telling." And reading their letters one senses the bitter disappointment that is theirs as they remember. "She seemed so sweet," writes Bill. And "I know I can never marry her now after the way she made light of every sacred thing in the world, but how can I forget the things about her that I did love?" Pitiful, and so needless.

And now comes David and his story of a girl who decided to "make herself clear without any ifs, ands or buts" and who succeeded in making herself clear without any "ifs, ands or buts."

It is an unpleasant thing to contemplate woman calling upon man to knock her from her pedestal and berating him for his stupidity when he refuses. But since it is evident that many of the younger women are engaged in this form of spiritual vandalism it is best that they know just how a normal healthy minded man reacts to their infantile suggestions. David, stating his case, declares that he fears it is not fit to print. It is not fit to print in its entire form but its substance and his reaction are not only fit to print but should be printed and reprinted in every publication read by young women of the "better educated" type. The type that has not enough to do. Read on:

Dear Frances McDonald: Until I read that letter of "Regan's" I thorght I was the only man who was ever called a fool for being decent. The girl—and how I loved her—was of the better-educated type, money, own car, clothes, looks, everything and fine family. One word describes her—lovely. Well, I fell for her and took her everywhere. But she began putting temptation of every sort in my way. I could hardly believe it. It seemed impossible. But at last one night she announced that since I was so slow at getting an idea she would make herself clear without any ifs, ands or buts.

She did, and I was so disgusted that I could only look at her and think that if she had not happened to speak, I would certainly have picked her for the mother of my children. It turned my stomach to think of it. I drove her home and have never seen her since.

Now what gets me is this. She is the well-loved daughter of the finest people and has the sweetest and most appealing ways. Is it the school she attended, the things she reads, the people she knows or what on earth is it that makes such a girl so cheap and shameless? I am considered a desirable eligible. College, family, money and all that. And here I am. She was the one I had picked. And now, I drive by her house. Even go up on the porch. There she is at home sitting in a big chair reading a book and looking sweet and good. I watch her through the windows and wonder why life is like that.

Could I ever change her? I doubt it. I feel I would always look down upon her after the way she spoke of what is to me a sacred phase of life. But how can I forget the things about her that so appealed to me? She as much as said only fools were decent and that settles the matter of marrying her. But how to forget the other things? What produces her type?

DAVID.

And there you have the picture. The trashy-minded girl trying to be startlingly different and succeeding only in being startingly third-rate.

Do not go back, David, ideals are too precious to be lost.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXXI.

Early in August, 1917, Gen. Wood was in Washington for a flying visit, running into Lord Northcliffe, who was depressed by the slow pace of the American preparation and "horrified" over the action of the War Department in failing to standardize rifle calibers, but afraid to offend the sensibilities of the administration.

"On the whole, conditions in the War Department impress me as being absolutely chaotic," Gen. Wood wrote in his diary of August 4. "There is no apparent appreciation of the gravity of the situation. Bliss had a feeble argument to make about the rifles, but it was so feeble that it demonstrated his entire failure to appreciate the seriousness of the situation."

Gen. Bliss told him that department commanders were to be relieved of all responsibility for the administration of the training camps and the training of troops and informed him that he was to be assigned to the command of a group of divisions "amounting to army corps or field armies;" but the next day at Richmond, on his way South, he received a telegram, succinct and brusque."

"Report whether you prefer to remain in command of department or to be assigned to one of the tactical divisions being organized."

Order New Humiliation.

The order, in substance and in form, was a fresh humiliation. As commander of the department he would have the trappings of authority, but responsibility only over the supplies; and even that burden he would share with the department quartermaster. As commander of a division, he, the senior general of the Army, would be on an equality with the youngest major general appointed from the militia. He suspected that the administration was maneuvering to secure his resignation. Well, he would disappoint them.

"I prefer assignment to a tactical division," he answered, "in view of recent orders relieving department commanders of all duties relative to organization, discipline and training of troops destined for overseas service in the present war, and hence of all opportunity of active service in Europe, for which I applied immediately on declaration of war and which I still desire with command commensurate with my rank as senior general officer of the Army."

When, at Charlotte, N. C., next day, a committee which was preparing for the coming of the New England National Guard, asked Wood for rulings in regard to sanitation and police control of the camp, he let them know that his power was at an end and that the camps were to be directed by a bureau under the Secretary of War.

His words reached the press, as possibly he intended, and brought sharp comment regarding the passion of the Secretary of War to centralize all powers in his own hands. If the administration, indeed, insisted on a little war of its own against him, Gen. Wood was clearly not averse to it. "I am a pretty old fox at this game," he said to a friend. The War Department should hear from the country concerning this fresh attack. Wood gave the department's telegram to the newspapers with his reply.

Press Reflects Indignation.

The press was indignant, not a Republican press this time, but a Democratic press in the stronghold of the President's party. For the new dispensation hit their section of the country as it hit no other, since twelve out of the twenty training camps were situated there. The Southerners, who were inclined to hero-worshipers, resented the removal from power of a man they had taken to their hearts; and noted sharply "another stage" in the "political shelving" of Gen. Wood.

To limit Gen. Wood's authority to the mere location of the camps, to withhold from him the opportunity of training the men and the officers, the thing which he had proved that he could do superbly, and place it in the hands of a pacifistic lawyer at a desk in Washington, seemed to them ludicrous and tragic. "It sounds like 'Pinafore,'" said the Charleston American. Incidentally, it revealed the sham of the "high official's" assertion that Gen. Wood was being sent South to train the bulk of the troops; and the insincerity of the President's talk of Gen. Wood in the role of Kitchener.

"Frankly, it looks to us like petty politics," wrote an indignant Southern editor. "We profess to have some intuition as to men. We know one when we see him. Wood is a man, a great man, outstanding and commanding, and such a one, like Grant, of which Presidents are made. Is this the secret?"

Confidential Note Gives Hint.

A confidential note from a friend in the War Department gave Wood his first intimation of his new post. He was to command Camp Devens at Ayer, Mass. But when, three days later, his orders came, they sent him to Camp Funston, Kans. A powerful officer in the War Department, possibly surmising shrewdly who had started the new flood of journalistic eloquence, had been heard to declare: "We'll send Wood to Kansas where he can't do any harm."

Gen. Wood left Charleston, stoical and grim. He would do the best he could, he told a friend, and incidentally fight his enemies in high places by showing them that he could not be doomed, whatever they might do to him.

Meanwhile—

"So far as I can find," wrote Gen. Clarence Edwards blithely, "you have got the East and South ablaze, and God knows what you will do with the Middle West, and there are a lot of things that Abou Ben Adhem saw when he awoke from a deep dream of peace."

On his way eastward, Gen. Wood stopped over in Washington. The War Department, where he had ruled for four years as chief of staff, where he had waged and won his fight on the bureaus, where seven years before he had begun his campaign for preparedness, was like a hostile camp. He had devoted friends there, but the men with power were not his friends and those among them who had been his friends had, most of them, run to cover. The things their vast machinery was at work upon, the training camps for officers, the draft, he had inspired and prepared when there was danger in the doing. The very weapons they were planning to fight with he had saved for them from the roadside, where men without vision had flung them.

Confronts Two Offenders.

In the chief of staff's office he confronted the two who were in his eyes the gravest offenders. He had raised them to the power they were enjoying and they had not lifted a finger to ward off the blows. He saw that they were conscious of this. They looked like shame-faced schoolboys expecting the rod, and for an instant he was tempted to speak what was in his mind. But he, who in moments of relaxation, let the unruly member run free, could exercise a sharp control in crises; and the two men, in their glory, seemed suddenly unimportant to him and not worth an outburst.

He was [illegible] with the Secretary of War. With him he held what he described in his diary as "a very frank and brutal talk." It was an unhappy fatality which kept these men at odds with each other. Baker was very able; he had depth and devotion and was gradually gathering the wires of a tremendous machine into a central switch-box; he had, moreover, a natural regard for any man who knew his job, an admiration for an expert, and a sincere desire not to get in his way.

There was really two Bakers, the former pacifist who made silly speeches about rejoicing in the happy confusion of the war preparations; and the executive, working day and night, not always wisely but always earnestly, toward the construction of a war machine. Gen. Wood could see only the former and distrusted his nimble cleverness.

Wood in Frank Talk.

Gen. Wood told the Secretary that he understood that he was personally friendly and was acting under orders "from those higher up." However, the game, he suggested, had much better be played "with the cards on the table instead of under it." If there was lack of trust in him, it should be publicly announced and he should be placed on waiting orders as an officer not enjoying the confidence of the administration. If he had said or done anything that made it necessary to demote him "with constantly increasing rapidity," it should be made a matter "of direct official attack and not of a stab in the back."

"Indeed," Gen. Wood wrote Roosevelt, "there was no lack of frankness in the way of putting the proposition to him.

"He wriggled about a good deal. He spoke of my public addresses. I asked him if there was anything in them objectionable and, if so, why I hadn't been brought to book. He replied that, unfortunately, everything I said was true and everything I predicted had come to pass. I then asked him if statements I made in my official reports as to artillery, &c., had not proved to be correct. He replied they had.

Early Statements Recalled.

"I then said that if my recommendations had been listened to when they were made a year and a half or two years ago, we would have been ready for war now, &c. I told him I had asked for service in France when war was declared but that no acknowledgment had been made to my request and that, although I was the senior officer in the service, I had not in any way been consulted as to my staff or my assignment—a thing that has never happened in the history of the Army before. I also called attention to the fact that, after the troops had been sent to the Mexican border from my department, and after I had equipped them very largely after the War Department had said it could not be done, my request for service on the border had not even been acknowledged—all of which, of course, was true and none of which he could deny.

"I could get no statement from him as to whether he was going to send me to France or not. I think he is entirely without any final authority in the matter. It was expected in both England and France that I would be sent over."

Mr. Baker said that he was sending younger men. Both Pershing and Petain had asked for young officers. Gen. Wood reminded him that he was sending Col. Mann, who was 63, and many others older than himself and all his juniors in rank. Pershing himself was older; Petain was 59; the average of the French higher command was around 60; the average of the German much older. Wood himself was not yet 57.

Sidestepping, Is Claim.

"I then took up with him (Baker) the ill advisability of the present method of assignment," Wood wrote in his diary August 15, 1917. "Told him he had given his senior major generals only the same responsibilities that he had given to the latest appointment from the militia and that he was really now left without any one to coordinate and standardize the training; that Barry, Bell, myself and other senior major generals should have been used to coordinate and standardize the training of groups of divisions. * * *

"He was rather side-stepping from one issue to another and evidently very uncomfortable and uncertain of his ground. * * * My whole interview was rather disgusting to me and made it clearly evident the war is being run on personal lines rather than a line of efficiency."

So Wood rode grimly into Coventry.

"I haven't followed the precedent of extolling our leader as the bulwark of democracy and the hope of mankind," he wrote Roosevelt, "although I have tried to support earnestly and vigorously his announced policy and to put the people in the South solidly behind the Government. * * *

"I have the unfortunate habit of telling the truth for a number of years (as you have) and pretty much everything we said has come true and we can (neither of us) be forgiven for it."

Supreme Court Refuses 'Abie's Irish Rose' Suit

(Associated Press.)

The run of "Abie's Irish Rose" in the courts was ended yesterday by the Supreme Court's declining to hear a suit for infringement of copyright brought by its author, Ann Nichols.

Miss Nichols sought to have set aside a circuit court of appeals decision that the photoplay "The Cohens and the Kellys" did not infringe her copyright on "Abie's Irish Rose." The photoplay was produced by Universal Pictures Corporation, against which Miss Nichols' suit was directed.

Keepers Force Ground Hog To Act as Weather Gauge

"Ruff" Dragged From Indoor Cell at Zoo to Cast Shadow in Traditional Manner, Bringing Omens of Rain, Snow, Sleet.

If Washington is visited with six weeks of rain, sleet, snow, blizzards, blasts and whatever other disagreeable weather manifestations follow the ominous appearance of a ground hog's shadow at this time of year, Capital residents can blame Mr. Blackburn and his corps of playful keepers at the Washington Zoo.

"Ruff," one of the best mannered woodchucks at the park, yesterday was literally dragged from his indoor cell and carried out into the sunlight, that the ancient tradition might be observed.

And "Ruff" took a good long look at his shadow, according to Keeper George Dye, who conceived, perpetrated and executed the malignant plan. The groundhog afterward was carried back to his cell, where he will remain for considerably more than six weeks, indifferent to the untoward weather he has attracted. Not until spring comes around will he be given an outside berth.

Forecasters Mitchell and Weightman at the Washington Weather Bureau declined to file a competitive long range weather forecast, so "Ruff" yesterday had the field to himself. Interviewed at the Zoo, he maintained a pensive silence, which keepers interpreted as boding a good year for dealers in umbrellas, overshoes, &c.

Despite the cynicism of Messrs. Mitchell and Weightman concerning "Ruff's" skill as a prognosticator, the woodchuck apparently got off to a good start. The Weather Bureau compromised with him on a "partly cloudy" forecast for today.

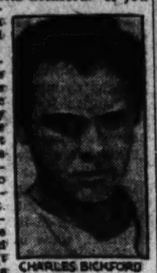
Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—One expects unusual things of the rough and ready, red-haired hero, Charles Bickford. If you saw him in "Dynamite" or "Anna Christie" you'll remember him.



CHARLES BICKFORD

He owns whaling vessels. He bathes in the chilly Pacific these wintry mornings. He owns a restaurant but seldom eats there. He's planning a trip to Honolulu in a 31-foot speedboat. He freely criticizes the men he works for and with. He doesn't believe in the Hollywood custom of saying only what he thinks will look well in print.

Ordinarily when a player and a studio tear up the actor's contract because of a disagreement, it's all over, including the shooting. Bickford loafed for two months and then went back to the studio he couldn't get along with.

A Friendly Fight.

Actors often get temperamental and walk out in a huff. When the huff wears off, as huffs do, they return. When Bickford quit Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer last November it followed a friendly argument, he insists, over the kind of roles he was getting.

Of course, Charlie had said some very unkind words about producers and directors and their pictures. He opined that most studio heads lack imagination, that pictures aren't fresh and new and different, and that there are only six good directors in Hollywood.

Bickford denies that what he said about movie art and the men responsible for it brought about the disagreement.

He Wants Little.

Freedom of speech, he intimates, is something he can't get along without, contract or no contract. And, according to Hollywood standards, Bickford will be somewhat of a bolshevik as long as he is openly critical.

When the new working agreement was drawn up, Bickford says both he and M-G-M made concessions. He'll play in certain pictures the studio wants him in, and in return he'll be given certain roles he wants to play.

"All I want," says he, putting his stand in a few words, "is a position easily acquired by good parts. It took me nineteen years on the stage to get where I am, and I don't propose to sacrifice that by a few poor roles."

The position he wants is stardom, and, if all goes well, "Bad Boy" Bickford will have it within a year.

BOARD TO SPONSOR FIREMAN'S PARADE

Labor Day Event This Year Promises to Be Larger Than Formerly.

HOSPITAL BILL INDORSED

A fireman's parade, bigger and better than any previous one, is assured for Washington on Labor Day of this year through action yesterday afternoon of the board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade pledging sponsorship of the event.

George Plitt, president of the board, announced that no expense would be spared to make the parade the most successful in the history of Washington. A director is to be selected within a few days to plan the parade and other details relative to the event.

Fire Chief George Watson expressed deep gratification on being informed of the action of the board of directors, predicting that under the sponsorship of the trade body, in cooperation with the Fire Department, that more fire departments will be represented in this year's parade than in any previously held.

Resolutions Adopted.

Proposal that the Board of Trade sponsor the parade was made by a subcommittee of the public order committee of the organization. Resolutions, pledging the sponsorship by the board, were presented at the meeting yesterday by Odell S. Smith, chairman of the public order committee. After a brief discussion, the resolutions were then adopted by the board of directors.

The directors also indorsed the Senate bill, sponsored by Senator Arthur Capper and Representative Clarence J. McLeod, providing for an appropriation of $50,000 to be used for alterations and repairs on the emergency building of Casualty Hospital and to pay off a portion of the indebtedness on the new building at the hospital.

$50,000 Fund Needed.

This action was recommended by the public health committee of the board after a study had been made of the bill and its provisions. It was shown that the hospital has an indebtedness of $105,000. The hospital started operating independently in 1925, under the direction of Dr. Joseph Rogers, with an indebtedness of $50,000. Prior to this, the hospital had operated in conjunction with Emergency Hospital.

Since that time, the assets of the hospital have been increased $225,000 while the indebtedness has been increased by only $55,000, it was revealed. The cost of the new building was $175,000 and additional equipment cost $50,000.

After taking action on the firemen's parade and the Casualty Hospital appropriation, the directors adjourned out of respect to the demise of B. Francis Saul, a member of the Board of Trade and a former director. The directors will attend the funeral today, it was announced.

Mission Benefit Sponsors Named

List for "Seth Parker" and Homer Rodeheaver Concert Picked.

A partial list of patronesses, headed by Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President, and Senora Orestes Ferrara, wife of the Ambassador of Cuba, was announced yesterday for the benefit performance of the Central Union Mission on the evening of February 16 when "Seth Parker" and Homer Rodeheaver will appear in person at Constitution Hall.

Other patronesses include Mrs. Luther H. Reicherderfer, Mrs. Herbert B. Crosby, Mrs. Walter S. Newton, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. William E. Brock, Mrs. Paul J. Kvale, Mrs. James E. Freeman, Mrs. Henry Flather, Mrs. Isaac Gans, Mrs. C. Francis Jenkins, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Henry Wells, Mrs. Charles Wood and Mrs. John Hervey Young.

Mrs. John S. Bennett is chairman of the committee representing the Women's Guild of the mission which is arranging for this unique charity benefit. All 50 boxes in Constitution Hall have been taken and the interest in "Seth Parker," whose religious programs on the air have made him one of the best known personalities of radio, has resulted in an unusual demand for seats. In real life "Seth Parker" is Phillips H. Lord, son of a Congregational minister.

Behind the Screens

—With DON B. REED—

IRKED by what he sees fit to deem my inconsistence, an annoyed correspondent hastens to bawl me out bitterly for certain statements contained in the two-column lead of the motion picture department of the Sabbath issue of The Post.

He pretends to perceive that after having vigorously aligned this department with the proponents of the talking picture, I now backtrack and pursue an opposite course by citing certain films of foreign origin—or at least reflecting a distinctly foreign viewpoint—that reveal a decided trend toward silence as quite the rattlesnake's elbows. Assuming that reference is made to "Morocco," "The Blue Angel" and "Under the Roofs of Paris," I hasten to refute the charge.

All three of these interesting pictures are "talkies." They do not, however, devastate themselves with utterance as so many native productions have done. It is only to the degree that they eliminate superfluous dialogue that I applaud them. Each is primarily a motion picture in the sense that action takes precedence over speech in the development of its story and not merely a photographed stage play that can be heard to better effect than it can be seen. Such dialogue as is present is necessary to fullest comprehension of the narrative. No other is included. That, I think, is as it should be and the quality I meant on Sunday to advocate.

No one, surely, will deny that in the old days of the silent screen, action was the vital element, and the printed subtitles merely helpful aids to a complete understanding of the character and aims of the dramatis personae involved. The merit of a motion picture in those days was estimated largely by the fewness of the subtitles with which it was able to survive. One or two adventurous producers—Charles Ray, for one—even went so far as to make feature pictures in which no subtitles whatever were incorporated—and were hailed as geniuses for their exceptional grasp of the potentialities of pantomime. It is something of that sort, as I understand it, that Charlie Chaplin has accomplished in his "City Lights," which has already had a flattering premiere on the West Coast and will be similarly introduced to the East in the George M. Cohan Theater in New York on Friday night of this week.

While this column does not subscribe to Mr. Chaplin's view that pictures are better for the omission of all dialogue, neither does it hold that too much dialogue is any very great improvement, either.

If a silent film was able to tell its story by the use of infrequent subtitles, why should a picture at this time need any more dialogue than might be represented by the sum total of words comprising those subtitles?

It is possible to be as ardent a booster as ever of real talking pictures without generating any special enthusiasm over what amount to little more than illustrated lectures!

Speaking of "City Lights" reminds me that while Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin is regaling New York with first presentations of his much-discussed wordless comedy, Washington on the same night will be diverted by first public presentations of another masterful achievement in "Cimarron," Radio Pictures' picturization of the novel of the same name by Edna Ferber.

This is an event that should be anticipated with keenest interest by patrons of RKO-Keith's. "Cimarron" is a great picture. As has been rather more than intimated here before, Richard Dix offers a portrayal as Yancey Cravat that you will probably not believe until you have seen it. Matching the excellence of his performance is Irene Dunne, in the opposite role of Sabra Cravat. But don't forget to keep an eye open for the surprisingly deft character studies contributed by Roscoe Ates and George E. Stone, the "bit" players who have of a sudden become full-fledged actors—and by Estelle Taylor, who plays Dixie Lee, the frontier's member of the oldest profession, in a manner so subdued that this tragic figure becomes doubly memorable.

As this is written, by the way, it has not been definitely determined by the management whether the first presentation of "Cimarron" at RKO-Keith's Friday night will be at the 9 o'clock performance, or at a special midnight showing.

Without presuming to interpret the views of its sponsors, it is the opinion of this Underwood No. 5 that "Cimarron" is too big and too fine a picture to be combined with any other—even so hilarious a travesty as "The Royal Family of Broadway"—in any trick double bill. It is plenty eyeful by itself for one evening.

Those who profess surprise that Paramount-Publix apparently has not put into plan or execution any act of reprisal against the Warner Brothers for their recent raids on Paramount acting personnel, have only to revert three years to the Paramount sales convention held at the Carlton Hotel in the spring of 1928.

The industry was chagrined at that time by Paramount's anxiety to relinquish the services of such high-priced and popular stars as Gloria Swanson, Richard Dix, Bebe Daniels, Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan and numerous others. It was not then believed that the William Powells, the Kay Francises, the Nancy Carrolls, the Richard Arlens, and all the other younger featured players, could possibly preserve Paramount prestige in the eyes of the world, but they did, and in so doing they gradually worked their respective ways up into the big-money class. Paramount now watches them slip away to other pay rolls at still higher stipends without excitement or perturbation. Now they will come along with a new flock of youngsters and the whole process will work itself out again.

It would not surprise me in the least to learn that it was Paramount who tipped the Warner boys off!

And that reminds me. With John J. Payette, local manager for the Warner Bros., for a father, and Harry M. Crandall, founder of the theaters comprising the Warners' local chain, for a grandfather, there can be no question of the future distinction of baby John J. Fayette, jr., in the motion picture field. As a matter of fact, no sooner had they heard of his birth on January 24 than all three of the Skourkas brothers handed Harry Warner their resignations!

When you view "Wild Flowers," one of the foremost supplementaries of the bill at RKO-Keith's this week, you may not go for Jean Goldkette, conductor of the Studebaker Champions, as a comedian, but the chances are you will for the radiator cap in the closing numbers, staged on the hood of the Gargantuan roadster. You'll see.

Two old friends in town Thursday—Sam (Roxy) Rothafel and Wee Willie Robyn, one of his "gang," at Constitution Hall, the former having relinquished his Roxy Theater in New York to assume managerial direction of the Rockefeller—RCA Radio City at a reputed salary of $5,000 per week. Boy, deliver my crate of apples to the corner of Eighteenth and D.

If this is winter, we've been having a lot of cheers for the groundhog.

DISMISSAL SOUGHT IN ALIENATION SUIT

O'Brien Declares Wedding Between Daughter, Lamp Was Illegal.

$75,000 DAMAGES ASKED

Denying all charges, Clarence A. O'Brien, Washington patent attorney, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to dismiss two suits recently brought against him by his son-in-law, Adrian H. Lamp, who is seeking to recover a total of $75,000 damages. Lamp is suing for alleged alienation of his wife's affections and for alleged false arrest. He seeks $50,000 damages in the first action and $25,000 in the second.

The father-in-law, in his pleas for dismissal, made only one concession in the alienation suit, and that was that his daughter, formerly Mrs. Ruth Cady, had gone through "some form of marriage ceremony" November 12, 1929, at Rockville, Md.

O'Brien made a counter charge that the marriage ceremony was illegal, asserting that at the time Lamp had another wife, with whom he had lived since 1925. The attorney also charged his son-in-law with contriving to deprive him of his daughter's company.

O'Brien disclaimed any responsibility for Lamp's arrest at Union Station several months ago, and declared he had no knowledge of what the police had done. Attorney John J. Splain appeared for the patent attorney.

Lamp is a native of Holland, and at the time of his arrest here was entangled with immigration officials, who claimed he had entered the United States illegally. He was cleared in Police Court, only to be taken into custody by immigration officials.

Pyromaniac Is Denied Release From Asylum

Justice Frederick L. Siddons, in District Supreme Court, yesterday ordered John J. Fisher back to St. Elizabeths Hospital, quashing a writ of habeas corpus on which the man was brought into court.

Fisher was sent to St. Elizabeths in 1928 following a series of disastrous fires in Washington. He told the court he considered himself cured and expressed a desire to get out of the hospital and stand trial. Hospital authorities, however, declared the man was still suffering from pyromania. Assistant United States Attorney William H. Gallagher appeared for the Government.

ARTS BAL BOHEME BRILLIANT AFFAIR

King and Queen of Moon Provide Glamorous Theme for Annual Event.

PLANETS SEND ENVOYS

The annual Bal Boheme of the Arts Club of Washington, "On the Moon," was held last night amid a glamorous setting in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

The setting, a "pathway to the moon," was made by 36 young artists of Washington, all students of the National School of Fine and Applied Art. Lights in the ballroom were blue and revealed a silver pathway, jammed with stars.

At the end of the hall was a giant stairway which reached to a moon in partial eclipse. The theme of the Bal Boheme was a reception in the Court of King Loony XIII. Ambassadors from all planets were in attendance.

As the heralds announced the entrance of the Royal Court, it became known that King Loony was missing. He was found, however. All the representatives from other planets appeared, except earth. Finally a Broadway producer arrived with his company, and the grand march started.

Louise Rochon Hoover was the Silver Queen. Harry Welker was King Loony and Denis Connell the Broadway producer.

Those who held boxes were Mrs. Robert Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, Mrs. Carl Droop, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Mrs. Geary Johnson, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Samuel Koones, Mrs. L. Morris Liesenring, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Ralph Richards, and Mrs. Henry Jay Staley.

Ice Making Is Tested For Benefit of Skaters

Partial success was reported late yesterday in the experiment being conducted on the District building roof to determine what artificial temperatures are needed to freeze a certain amount of water out of doors. George J. Adams, chairman of a Board of Trade committee in charge, said that some evidences of ice were discernible before sundown.

The tests are being conducted to determine the feasibility of freezing the Lincoln Memorial pool so that Washingtonians may ice skate all winter. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission is cooperating in the undertaking.

OLD GOLD SPILLS THE BEANS IN BOSTON

Upsets rival brands with Sweeping Victory . . . in Ripley's latest Taste-Test

They held another "tea-party" at Boston the other day. "Down with the tyranny of habit!" was the cry. "Let's find out which cigarette really tastes the best."

From Back-Bay to the Fishing Docks, it was another Boston rebellion. Throwing brand prejudice overboard . . . more than a thousand Boston smokers compared the four leading cigarettes, with the brand names hidden.

They didn't know which was which. They didn't care. All they wanted was to pick out the best tasting cigarette.

At Lexington . . . modern Minute Men needed hardly a minute to give O. G. a 2 to 1 victory. At Bunker Hill, OLD GOLD'S cool, throat-easy quality completely routed the enemy.

"No taxation without representation" . . . said the Boston of long ago. "No throat-tax . . . and unlimited smoking joy," says the Boston of today.

PENN HITS OVEREMPHASIS BY SWEEPING REFORM

Virginia Jolts Maryland U. Five, 34-31

Cavaliers Nip Liners' Rally to Triumph in Surprise.

Virginia Leads, 17-15, at Half; Berger Is Leading Star.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 2.—Virginia's basketeers upset the dope etonight by turning back the crack Maryland quintet, 34 to 31, before the banner crowd of the season, which gave Coach Tebell and the players an ovation at the close of the contest.

The Cavaliers, spurred on by recent victories over William and Mary and Virginia Poly, and strengthened by the return to the game of Capt. Manley, who has been out of the line-up with influenza, outplayed the Old Liners throughout.

The first half, which was hard fought, witnessed the retirement of a star performer on each team by the personal foul route. Delafield, Cavalier forward, was the first to go and, near the close, he was followed by Norris. Three times during the period the score was knotted, but at half time Virginia led by two points, 17-15.

Cavaliers Stage Drive.

Determined to show the Terrapins that they were out to win, the Cavaliers launched a determined drive at the start of the second half and after ten minutes of play enjoyed a 7-point lead.

Coach Shipley rushed in some substitutes at this point and Maryland rapidly began to out down the lead, aided by brilliant shots by Berger. The assault ended as Capt. Manley caged a shot from near midfloor two minutes before the referee's whistle sounded.

Some idea of the defensive work of the Cavaliers is shown by the fact that the four Maryland forwards caged but a single basket in the 40 minutes of play. Berger proved the outstanding star of the game. He rang up six baskets and made good on four shots from the charity mark, for a total of 18 points. This gives him a total of 72 points in the Southern Conference race for scoring honors.

Mayo and Thomas led in the Virginia attack.

Md. Avenue Baptists Triumph in League

Maryland Avenue Baptists achieved sweet revenge for a beating suffered earlier in the season at the hands of the same team by trouncing the Centennial Baptists, 34 to 25, last night in the MacFarland Gymnasium. The triumph brought the winning team within one game of the P. Y. P. U. League championship, which it can clinch by defeating First Baptist at the Langley Gymnasium next Friday.

Tom Peck and Dewey Moore led the Maryland Avenue Baptist Team to its wel learned victory with 14 and 8 points, respectively. Leonard topped the Cents, with 11 points to his credit.

School Heads Will Act in Tech Case

Principals in Meeting Today or Tomorrow; 2 Games Today.

Business and Central, Tech and Western Will Battle.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE high school basket ball series is as full of ifs and buts and maybes this year as it is full of longshots, poor passing and zone-defense situations. Already garbled by the fine display of such early season underdogs as Business, further chaos has entered the squad standings by Tech's use of an ineligible player last Friday and the possible results of this action.

However, nothing that has gone before and nothing that will follow even will keep several thousand fans from jamming into Tech Gym today at 3:45 o'clock to see Tech play Western and later to see Central play Business. It is Tech's and Western's penultimate appearance in the series.

The high school principals will meet either tomorrow or Thursday to consider what is to be done over the Tech-Central game. Chairman of the Board of Principals Allen Davis has called the special caucus at the instigation of Mr. Frank Daniels, principal of Tech.

Hilleary Case Recalled.

Little intimation of how the school heads would act is available, but one of the school heads assumed last night that the Hilleary case of 1927 might be used as a precedent. Western High made use of Hilleary on its baseball team after he had passed the age of 21. Tech objected and the principals awarded Tech the game, the only one in which Hilleary appeared after 21 years of age. No case precisely similar to the one which is to be considered tomorrow or the next day has ever been brought up before the principals.

Business has a chance to go into first place today—a chance. Playing without the services of Bobby Lucas for the first time since 1927, the Stenogs must depend on "Sis" Eisenstadt, Lucas' understudy, to fill the graduated one's shoes. Eisenstadt heretofore has been used in relief roles and has shown marked ability to come through with long shots at opportune moments, but it would be unfair to him to expect him to reincarnate Lucas' master dribbling, passing and generalship.

Central Favored Today.

Central, therefore, seems favorite today. Its win of today's game would boost its record to .500, which, added to a possible verdict in its favor from the court of principals, would make of the neophytes of Mr. Coggins a serious challenger for Tech's fading championship.

The Tech-Western game today is a toss-up. Tech was victorious in the game played January 16 by the score 28 to 24, but had to eradicate a Western lead of 23 to 18 in the last four minutes of play.

One big factor in Western's favor today is the absence of Waverly Wheeler from the Tech line-up because of scholastic ineligibility. Wheeler, with four field goals to his credit in the last game between the two squads, was a potent factor in Tech's victory. This advantage, however, appears to be nicely offset by the great improvement of Artie Willison, Tech guard, and the evident ban Coach Cliff Moore, of Western, has placed on the long shooting of Tony Latona, Western's leading scorer.

STRATH MACKAY is well up in years but his voice is still changing, that is, from bass to tenor. Mackay's vocal cords do not match, which enables him to alternate between his two voices or sing both tenor and bass at the same time. If Strath had a twin brother they'd make a fine quartet.

The first woman ever elected a member of the British Parliament was Countess Markovitcz, but being a Sinn Feiner, the countess declined to take the oath of loyalty, and therefore was never seated in the House of Commons. Lady Nancy Astor, American born, was the first woman to actually be seated in the British Parliament.

C. U. BOXERS IN DEBUT TONIGHT

Only 2 Veterans on Team That Will Face M. I. T.

THE second of the infant boxing season's offerings for local fistic fans is scheduled tonight in the spacious Brookland Gymnasium where Catholic University's mitt wielders meet the team of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The match marks the 1931 debut of the Cardinals, who follow Maryland University's team into action.

Preceded by five exhibition bouts among members of Stuyvesant School of Warrenton, Va., the main attraction will begin at about 8:30 o'clock. The preliminaries will commence at 7. The college program consists of the usual seven bouts from bantamweight to heavyweight.

Catholic's team is more or less of an unknown quantity, as it boasts of only two experienced men, Capt. Rocco Biasi, middleweight, and Harry di Giacomo, lightweight. But Coach Eddie LaFond, himself a former C. U. ring battler, confidently expects his charges to make a creditable showing. At least, he expects them to show no lack of effort.

Middleweight Best of Invaders.

Little is known here of the strength of Massachusetts Tech, except that Cooper, middleweight, was the lone member of the visitors to score a victory when they met Army recently at West Point. If that fact signifies that Cooper is a capable boxer, then the fans may look for a thrilling scrap in the middleweight bout. Cooper will face Capt. Biasi, who has lost but one bout during two previous seasons with the Brookland team.

Johnny DePasquale, Catholic's clever bantamweight, will not be available tonight. Intensive work on his studies has kept the speedy little Italian from training thus far. Joe Unsworth, a newcomer, will take his place.

Danny Pyne Fights as Heavyweight.

In the heavyweight class, Catholic will be represented by Danny Pyne, a Washingotn boy, who is in his first year at the Brookland school. Pyne is inexperienced, but, according to Coach LaFond, has natural boxing ability.

Admission to the bouts is restricted to members of the Catholic University Athletic Association who hold tickets for the winter sports schedule. Membership is open to the public at a fee of $3 per person.

Following is the card:

Catholic U.	Weight.	M. I. T.
Unsworth	115	Orienza
Calabrese	125	Lanzetti
DiGiacomo	135	Daniels
Stines	145	Thomason
Biasi	160	Cooper
Lyons	175	Cashman
Pyne	Unlimited	O'Malley

Referee—Maj. Harvey C. Miller.

FIGHT CANCELED.

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The ten-round, nontitle fight between World Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri and Goldie Hess, of Los Angeles, scheduled for Wednesday night in the Chicago Stadium, today was called off because of illness of both boxers.

Hen House Slice Allows Golfer to Score an 'Egg'

Spartanburg, S. C., Feb. 2 (A.P.). Fritz Sheram, sports editor of the Spartanburg Journal, teed up and sliced his drive into the rough near a henhouse.

For some minutes the white pellet eluded searchers, until a hen flew off her nest to reveal the ball nestling cozily between two eggs which had escaped unscatched.

Duryee Named Captain Of Business Quintet

Bill Duryee, center, has been named to succeed Bobby Lucas as captain of the Business High School Basket Ball Team for the remainder of the season.

Duryee, whose improvement has been marked, is 18 years old and a veteran of two years' standing on the team. Although not particularly tall, he has dominated activities in his center ring in all games this year, including Business' game with Eastern, whose center—Big Bill Noonan—is considered the best tappoff man in the series.

Maryland and Generals In Clash Here Tonight

Three college basket ball games that promise much in the way of keen competition are scheduled for local consumption tonight. This card opens a busy five-day period for Capital teams.

In a Southern Conference game at College Park, Maryland will meet Washington and Lee at 8 o'clock. In the third fray American University will entertain Elon, of North Carolina, on the former's floor, starting at 8.

Maryland will be out to score its second victory of the season over Washington and Lee. The first clash, at Lexington last month, resulted in a 36-to-21 decision for the College Park team. Maryland tonight expects stronger opposition.

GIRLS SEEK CONTESTS.

Howitzer Girls, of Kensington, are willing to play any girls team in this section. Miss Rose Lewis, Howitzer manager, can be reached at Kensington 36-W, between 6 and 7 p. m.

HACK WILSON SIGNS; WAGE SECRET

Everything Is 'O. K.,' Says Slugger; Sees New Homer Mark.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Whether Hack Wilson, the Chicago Cubs' home-run clouter, obtained the $40,000 a year he was reported to have demanded was unknown tonight, but at least the chunky outfielder was satisfied with the amount he will receive for the 1931 season.

Wilson and William Veeck, president of the Cubs, met here today and came to terms quickly. Wilson signed a one-year contract. As is usual in the Cubs' business arrangements with the players, the amount the slugger will receive next season was not revealed.

Everything was "O. K." to Hack, he said after his conference with Veeck. If it had not been, he added, he would not have signed. The outfielder would not comment on the reports that he had asked for $40,000, which would give him a pay check half the size of Babe Ruth's.

Terms Satisfactory to Club.

Veeck said the terms also were satisfactory to the club. Asked if Wilson was now the highest salaried player in the National League, outside the managerial ranks, Veeck said, "I think he is."

The club executive and Hack shook hands after the signing, and the slugger announced that during the coming season he expected to break Babe Ruth's record for home runs.

Wilson during the 1930 campaign led the major leagues in home runs with 56 and established a new record for runs batted in—159. Incidentally, he also was given the most bases on balls—105.

The Bambino's high in circuit clouts for a season is 60, made in 1927.

BALTIMOREANS BOOKING.

Umpires' Meet to Study New Rule On Home Runs Seen as Aid to Ruth

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—American League umpires will return to school again tomorrow under the tutelage of President Ernest S. Barnard.

Classes will be over a period of two days during which rules, old and new, will be discussed fully so that all of th arbiters obtain a uniform interpretation of them.

Pitchers' balks and home runs will be given the largest amount of attention by President Barnard. Under the new American rule, a home run is judged as it flies over the fence or as it goes out of sight. Formerly, it was judged foul or fair as the ball landed. The new rule, similar to that in the National League, will enable Babe Ruth to add ten or fifteen homers to his annual collection, the American League fans believe.

"If the Babe is right this season, he'll crack his old record as he never before has been able to get a home run out of his long shots that were fair by the base line, but landed foul in the decks or bleachers," said Henry Edwards, keeper of American League records. "A lot of fans say he would have clicked off twenty more home runs last year if the present rule had been in effect."

Campbell Hits 240-Mile Speed

Will Try for Record Today After Unofficial Attempt.

Overjoyed by Test; Flames Flare as Run Starts.

By TED GILL.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 2 (A. P.).—Having attained an unofficial speed of 240 miles an hour today, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, veteran British race car driver, announced tonight he would make his official trial for the world land speed record tomorrow, beach and weather conditions permitting.

In one tremendous burst of speed, he drove his trim Bluebird racing car over the 9-mile stretch of beach at a rate of approximately 4 miles a minute and he said he was "tickled to death" with the machine's performance.

"It was simply wonderful, and I can hardly find words to express my joy," Campbell said, as he removed his goggles and climbed out of the huge racing car after his test run. A crowd of spectators gathered about and cheered him.

Believes Beach in Best Condition.

"The beach was the best I have ever seen it, and if it is still good tomorrow I shall go for the official record then," he said later.

Although Campbell's speed today exceeded by approximately 9 miles an hour the present world land speed record of 231, it was not officially recognized, as it was not officially timed. Furthermore, he made only one run, whereas regulations specify a driver must make two trials, one with the wind and the other against it, in order that an average two-way speed can be calculated.

After considerable delay in getting his car started, Campbell put the 1,400-horsepower machine in motion near the north end of the course. But was compelled to stop suddenly when he discovered smoke and flames under the hood. A motorcycle policeman with a fire extinguisher ran up and extinguished the blaze near the carburetor.

Starts Off Again Immediately.

Not stopping to raise the hood and inspect the motor, to see if any damage had been done, Campbell started off again.

When he passed the grandstand several miles down the beach, the motor appeared to be functioning perfectly. It flashed by with a mighty roar and in a few seconds had disappeared from view at the south end of the beach in a light mist.

The return trip up the beach was made at a slow pace. Campbell explained that he did not care to run the motors fast again on a practice run.

At the conclusion of today's run, Odis Porter, official timer for the American Automobile Association, was notified at his home in Hollywood, Fla., to come here tomorrow for the official trials. The other automobile association officials, who will supervise the runs, already are here.

Emile Bozek Is Lost To Georgetown Quintet

Georgetown, almost on the eve of the Navy game, scheduled tomorrow, has lost the services of Emile Bozek, who was suspended from athletic participation at the Hilltop for desciplinary reasons. This robs the Blue and Gray of both defensive and offensive strength, Bozek having been a prominent figure in all of Georgetown's contests up to this time.

George Washington lost the services of Jaock Perry for the remainder of the season, according to returns from the recent classroom battles.

Pro Berth at Richmond Accepted by Mitchell

Jimmy Mitchell, tennis professional at Columbia Country Club, will not return to his post with the opening of the tennis season in Washington. The young Georgetown netman has accepted a teaching berth at the Country Club of Virginia at Richmond.

Mitchell, a pro at Columbia for the past two tennis seasons, was a well-known public courts player before joining professionalisms ranks in 1927 under the tutelage of Otto Glocker, veteran Chevy Chase tennis instructor.

Mitchell departs for his new duties about March 15. He will succeed E. L. Van Ryper.

America-France Net Duel Indoors Scheduled

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—An indoor edition of the expected contest between the United States and French tennis teams next summer for the Davis Cup will be waged at the Seventh Regiment Armory in New York March 23 to 26.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association announced today that a French team, consisting of Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, will meet a team of United States nationalists on those dates, following the national indoor championship March 14-21. The Frenchmen also will compete in the championships play.

With the exception of Henri Cochet, the French team will be the one which probably will defend the Davis Cup next summer.

The United States team has not yet been selected, and probably will not be until after the championships.

Sports Placed in Control Of Trustees With Coaches' Wages on Faculty Scale

10 SALIENT POINTS OF PENN'S REFORM

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Ten of the salient features of the new system of handling athletics at the University of Pennsylvania follows:

1. Incorporation of athletic control into the administrative structure of the university.

2. Establishment of a single department of physical education, directed by a dean responsible to President Thomas S. Gates and the board of trustees.

3. Subdivision of the department of physical education into three branches—student health, physical instruction and intercollegiate athletics—each administered by a director.

4. All coaches made members of the faculty and to receive salaries no greater than other faculty members.

5. Abolition of the present council of athletics, composed of alumni, students and faculty members, previous ruling body.

6. Abolition of spring and preseason training in football, training tables, training house as a dormitory for athletes, scholarship and beyond that earned in the classrooms.

7. Wide expansion of intramural athletics.

8. Fostering of year-round competition with natural rivals in all sports through a range of teams of varying ability.

9. Suggestions for the future whereby less financial reliance will be placed on gate receipts.

10. Decisions on questions of academic eligibility of students for intercollegiate competition vested solely in committee of five faculty members appointed annually by President Gates.

Young Loses $10,000 Job; Spring Grid Practice Banned.

Install Coaches in Faculty; Athletic Council to Fall.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Sweeping and sensational changes in the entire athletic system of the University of Pennsylvania, designed to eliminate so-called overemphasis from competitive sports, were announced tonight by Thomas S. Gates, university president, as the result of an exhaustive survey of conditions here and elsewhere.

Effective at once, the president's statement of policy reveals the decision to eliminate athletic training tables and spring football practice, to readjust intercollegiate schedules and reduce intersectional competition, to install all coaches as faculty members and abolish the present council on athletic control.

Under the shake-up, the trustees and president of the university will exercise full responsibility, Mr. Gates announced, through a newly created department of physical education, which will have control of student health, physical instruction and the entire range of intercollegiate athletics.

Former Star Named Athletic Director.

To fill the important post as dean of the department of physical education, Mr. Gates announced with his report the appointment of Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, a well-known Pennsylvania all-round athlete in 1910-12 and for the last seventeen years at Swarthmore College as athletic director.

There will be three divisions of the new department of physical education—student health, physical instruction and intercollegiate athletics, each in charge of a director.

Although the present council on athletics, composed of alumni, students and faculty, which has had complete control of competitive sports independent of administrative officers, will be abolished, some of its members later may be included in an advisory board of athletics.

Full Time Basis for Coaches.

All coaches, in addition to being required to serve as faculty in the department of physical education, with academic rank, will be employed on a full-time basis and their salaries definitely established on the same scale applying to other members of the university faculty.

Subject to control by the university administration, however, coaches now under contract will continue to function as previously. The only long-term contracts involved are those of Russell S. Callow, rowing coach, through 1932; Lon M. Jourdet, basket ball, through 1935; Wallace Johnson, tennis, through 1933, and W. S. Merriam, swimming, through 1932. The contracts of all other coaches, including Lawson Robertson in track and Dr. Walter Cariss in baseball, expire at the end of this year. The three-year contract of J. R. Ludlow Wray as head football coach, which had two years more to go, already has been broken and Wray dismissed.

Lou Young Loses $10,000 Job.

Lou Young, former head football coach, loses his $10,000-a-year job as assistant to the chairman of the council on athletics. Young's name has been mentioned for the football coaching job. So has that of Lou Little, a Pennsylvanian now at Columbia.

The scope of President Gates' statement, issued with the concurrence of the trustees, was covered in a 23-page pamphlet and created a sensation. Coming as it does from one of the original "Big Four" of Eastern colleges, the report may elicit widespread comment. Mr. Gates, who resigned from the Philadelphia banking house of Drexel & Co., and from the New York and London and Paris firms of J. P. Morgan & Co., to serve the university without compensation, became president last July.

The new state of athletic affairs follows a report made to the trustees by Gordon A. Hardwick, an alumnus of the university, and Dr. Michail M. Dorizas, of the university faculty, after they had spent two months in a tour of the country surveying athletic conditions.

Only 5 Nats Unsigned As 2 More Enter Fold

The list of Nationals unsigned dwindled by two yesterday when President Clark Griffith announced the receipt of the contracts of Outfielder Harry Rice and Pitcher John Peregory. The latter is one of the rookies of the Nats' staff, a left hander obtained from Hagerstown.

The contracts of only five players are now missing. They are Pitchers Fred Marberry, Carl Fischer and Ad Liska and Infielders Jimmy McLeod and Jack Hayes.

Yankee Rookie Signs After Salary Controversy

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Meryl Hoag, young outfielder sold by Sacramento to the New York Yankees, to report this year, announced today he had straightened out his contract difficulties and signed with the American League club.

Hoag returned his first contract with the comment he thought he was worth more than $3,000 for the season. Yankee officials evidently agreed with him, as his salary was increased to $4,000, with the added inducement of a $1,000 bonus if he makes good and is kept with the team this season.

Eagles Beat French's; Saks Defeat J. C. C.

Seven hundred rabid fans packed and jammed George Washington University gym last night to see the Skinker Bros. Eagles go into undisputed first place in the Independent Basket Ball League by downing the French's-R. F. & P outfit, 30-25.

Duke Allen, giant center for the Eagles, found the cords for 13 points to lead all scoring.

The preliminary stole the show, so far as good basket ball was concerned. In it the winning streaks of the Saks Clothiers and the Jewish Community Center Teams clashed with a loud detonation. Saks lengthened its winning streak to 23 games by taking the decision, 20-19, after trailing, 14-6, at the half whistle.

Maryland Loses Court Star and Gains Another

The freshman class of athletes at Maryland University has lost one star and gained another with the opening of the spring term. Because of classroom difficulties, Wilbur Wright, stellar guard of the yearling basket ball team, has been declared ineligible, but in Wright's place comes George "Peewee" Walker, former Western High School flash, who has just transferred from Duke University.

Walker, one of the best all-around athletes produced in local scholastic ranks four years ago, did not take part in athletics at Duke last fall. He is expected to fill Wright's position on the Maryland frosh five and to bid for the shortstop berth on the baseball team.

Prior to enrolling at Duke last September, Walker spent two years at Milford Prep School, in Connecticut, the institution at which Albie Booth first attracted attention—and one year at Davitt Prep. He will not be eligible for varsity competition at Maryland until next February.

MARYLAND, VIRGINIA FIVES EAGER FOR POST EVENT

A. A. U. Play Popular in Suburbs

Five Days Remain for Registration in Two Classes.

District Group Gains More Territory for Tournament.

INTEREST in the Fifth Annual A. A. U. District of Columbia Basket Ball Championship Tournament, which will be held at the Tech High School Gymnasium the first week in March, under the joint auspices of The Washington Post and the local A. A. U. Association, is not confined exclusively to Washington and its suburbs.

This is proved by the number of applications The Post has been receiving from various Maryland and Virginia clubs located as far distant as 40 or 50 miles from Washington. Inquiries have been received from such places as Frederick and Ellicott City, Md., and Harrisonburg, Warrenton and Leesburg, Va., besides some from several intermediate points.

Teams Outside Area Now Eligible.

Nominally the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia Branch of the A. A. U. extends to within a 15-mile radius of Washington and includes all amateur teams located in this area. The Post, however, has made special arrangements with the South Atlantic Association of the A. A. U., which exercises jurisdiction over these outside teams, to allow these clubs to compete in the tournament. This action is expected to swell the tournament entry list, as many other teams outside the 15-mile limit have indicated willingness to enter the event but have hesitated to do so, thinking that they were not eligible.

Time Limited for Two Classes.

Counting today, only five days remain for players in the unlimited and 145-pound classes to register in the District of Columbia Branch of the A. A. U., a procedure which must be complied with before these players can participate in the tournament. Individual application blanks may be secured at the sports department of The Post, or from William E. Russell, chairman of registration, at 1503 North Capitol street.

These application blanks must be filled out and returned to Mr. Russell, or The Post sports department, by next Saturday, February 7. Team entry blanks for the tournament will be available shortly.

ST. JOHNS WINNER.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—St. John's College cagers kept their winning streak intact here tonight by defeating Elon College, of Greensboro, N. C., 35 to 31.

The Johnnies held a slight edge in each half, but actually missed many shots that prevented them from rolling up a tally. Each side made fourteen field goals, but the Johnnies played harder basket ball.

By J. B. SNODGRASS

SHialeah Park today. The re-SMALL but select fields will match strides in the feature events at mainder of the card has been turned over to the cheaper grades of horses.

In the outstanding event of the program, the Venetian Isles Handicap, a dash over the 6 furlongs sprint ground, will bring together five fleet speedsters, which will battle it out for the major portion of the $1,200 purse of the fifth race.

GUN ROYAL, highly regarded sprinter in the M. Stern stable, has been well treated with an impost of 115 pounds, and, following his splendid showing in the Hialeah highweight, figures to outstep this field. T. S. JORDAN, carrying the Peabody silks, won several races last fall on the Chicago tracks and in his return the other day displayed a high turn of speed. The Westerner figures to force the pace as far as he goes. JOCK, a crack sprinter in the E. B. McLean establishment, has been given top impost of 126 pounds, but has shown ability to carry weight and may surprise. However, the McLean racer is favored for the minor award.

SECONDARY FEATURE—Run as the sixth heat this race is fashioned for 3-year-olds exclusively and will be decided over the 1-mile course. Nine second-flight milers will parade to the post in this allowance affair. IMPISH, a consistent colt in the Wheatley string, appears well suited by the conditions and should carry off the honors. COCK ROBIN, a recent winner at this course, is stepping up a notch, but the R. Whitney gelding is given the place call.

FIRST RACE—This race has attracted a field of twelve 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares, which will be dispatched over the three-quarter distance. STUPENDOUS, a sluggish beginner, has shown several consistent efforts and is the choice to lead this field home. LITTLE TOOTS, a double winner at this track, may find the opposition a trifle stronger than in her previous victories.

SECOND RACE—Another limit field will face the barrier when twelve 2-year-old fillies will be sent over the nursery course, approximately 3 furlongs. DOVE, a clever miss in the Gaffney barn, won her last two starts impressively and figures to gain her third consecutive triumph against this field. SUNTICA should finish in the second notch. PLUM RUN is given the show call.

THIRD RACE—Twelve of the older horses in training will gallop over the mile and a sixteenth route of the third race. GLENNO, a consistent plater in the S. S. Combs stable, holds a slight edge over this band of claimers. The Combs starter is favored by the conditions and should romp off with the decision. RUNDALE displayed exceptional ability at Bowie and has trained briskly. RUBBERNECK has turned in some fast trials and appears ready for a winning effort.

FOURTH RACE—A claiming event for 4-year-olds and upward, has received six entries for the 6-furlong sprint. SUNNY MORN suffered interference last start and with better racing luck should account for the purse. BLACK DIAMOND, from the F. A. Carreaud barn, showed flashes of speed in his recent effort, in which he finished third, and should improve off that trial.

SEVENTH RACE—A field of twelve 4-year-olds and upward, with the claiming clause attached, will start in the mile and a sixteenth of the closing number. FETISH, a recent winner, has all his speed and is the logical choice in an open race with many possibilities. ARMEE NAVEE showed a return to his winning form last out and may upset the calculations. BIRDIE WRACK ran an impressive race in his last start, and is capable of taking down the important money.

NOSE MARGIN SCORES FOR OKAYBEE

Mare Just Lasts to Wire Under Garner at Miami.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The game 5-year-old mare Okaybee, showing one of the best races of her career and racing over a distance of a mile and 70 yards instead of the usual sprint distance, carried the silks of Mrs. G. W. Carroll to a thrilling victory in the East Coast Claiming handicap here this afternoon. The mare just lasted to beat Sun Shadow a nose. The latter was second by five lengths over Alcman.

Okaybee easily outran her rivals and sailed along three lengths in front to the stretch, followed by Begorra, Sun Shadow and Jean Lafitte, these three being closely bunched. Sun Shadow moved up very fast around the outside turning for home, and set sail for Okaybee. Begorra faded out of it after straightening out in the stretch.

Mack Garner put up one of his strongest finishes to keep Okaybee going, and the mare hung on just long enough.

Okaybee was well played, returning $9.50 for two. She ran the distance in the excellent time of 1:42 1-5.

Fareno Pays $68.60 in Juvenile Race.

The first two-year-old race to be run over the Nursery course, which is 75 feet short of 3 furlongs, was won by the Belair stud's Fareno, and paid the long price of $68.60 for $2. Don Red was second, and the favorite, Sun Pleasure, third.

Fareno ran straight and true, and in a hard drive won by a head. Don Red was another head in front of Sun Pleasure.

The time was 0:32 3-5.

STOCK PRICES CLOSE WITH SMALL GAINS

Market Is Extremely Dull and Slightly Lower Most of Day.

1,200,000 SHARES SOLD

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The stock market, indolent as the sleepy ground hog, spent most of today in hibernation. However, it did emerge from its burrow of dullness in the final hour of trading, sufficiently roused to close with small net gains.

There was scarcely enough activity to move prices either way up to mid-afternoon. The day's news, although not particularly startling, was of a color to please the shorts, for two of the Standard Oil companies and a large metal producer cut their dividends. Sales reports of the leading mail order houses for January showed material declines in comparison with a year ago and bar silver weakened.

The market was mostly lower while these announcements were being digested, but so inert did the trading become that only 200,000 shares changed hands between noon and 2:10 o'clock. Activity during the late improvement was sufficient to bring the day's business to approximately 1,200,000 shares.

American Phone Rises.

Baking shares rallied moderately in response to the change of management in Ward, and unofficial reports that Continental's earnings were well maintained in 1930. Oils refused to be much disturbed by the dividend action on Standards of Indiana and Kansas, nor were the metals bothered by International Nickel's cut. The utilities dropped at times, but American Telephone more than made up a 2-point loss. Steels and some of the specialties came forward with gains of a point or so, which prevailed at the close.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, Vanadium, Worthington Pump, Allied Chemical, Atchison, Southern Railway and American Tobacco "B" were up 1 to 1¾. Auburn's rise of 4 points was exceptional, and meant only that nervous shorts had covered. The stock at its lowest of the day was down 3.

Sentiment in the bond market showed little change, although the smaller turnover in United States Governments suggested the presence of less concern over the possibility of a maximum cash payment on the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, nevertheless, Liberties and Treasuries again declined, but closed above their minimums.

Money Markets Unchanged.

The money markets gave no indication that a new month, with its usual demands for funds, had arrived. Dividend and interest payments during February, it is estimated, will total around $500,000,000, a large portion of which fell due today. Short-term interest rates remained unchanged, even in the unofficial call market where accommodation could be had at 1 per cent. The extent to which cash is piling up at this center was reflected in the $1,000,000,000 increase in deposits of the 116 members of the New York Clearing House Association during the last quarter of 1930.

Wheat and cotton were somewhat soft at times, but the former closed one-eighth of a cent lower to seven-eighths higher, with strength in the July future. Larger world shipments and dry weather in the Southwest were reported. Corn gained one-half to 1 cent net and cotton finished unchanged to 4 points lower.

Renewed weakness of silver, which touched a new low here on a loss of half a cent, was accompanied by reports that there would be no loan to China. Shanghai exchange sagged, but European rates made only nominal changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Disquiet about prospective drought damage to United States winter wheat, and concerning lack of moisture for spring wheat as well, strengthened all grain prices today. St. Louis reported conditions the dryest since 1918, with rainfall not normal. Every part of the domestic winter wheat territory was reported bare of snow and no moisture received today except light showers at a few points in Texas and Kansas.

Wheat closed irregular, ranging from ⅛c decline to 1¼c advance; corn ½c to 1c up; oats at ⅛-½c gain, and provisions 6c to 12c down.

With forecasts pointing to widespread continued dearth both of rain and snow, persistent buying of new crop deliveries of wheat was in evidence from start to finish. Experts said the most important influence determining crop conditions over the big wheat area, Southwest where United States harvesting first takes place was spring melting of mountain snows in New Mexico, Arizona and the southern half of Colorado, but that only a trace of snow existed at present in the mountain region referred to. In the northern mountain region snow accumulation was also reported below normal, and the whole Great Plains area minus any snow blanket.

Selling off in stocks of wheat at Liverpool was a further bullish influence, though somewhat offset by enlargement of supplies on ocean passage. Lowering of estimates of the 1930 world wheat crop to 5 per cent over the 1929 total was announced, with reduction chiefly in Australia. Trading began today in September wheat, and at times that delivery was at 2 cents discount under July, but later the spread narrowed to a fraction, as fears regarding new crop damage became an increasing factor, and less likelihood appeared that September would be sold to provide an outlet for concentrated holdings of cash wheat.

Corn and oats not only sympathized with wheat strength but were responsive to a smaller increase than expected in the corn visible supply.

Provisions sagged as a result of downturns in hog values.

4 TO 10 POINT DROPS HIT PERUVIAN BONDS

Slump Reflected in Losses in Chilean, Colombian Bolivian Issues.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS SAG

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Liquidation in Peruvian bonds on the prospect that the republic may seek a moratorium on its external debt shared interest with the downward movement of U. S. Governments in the bond market today.

Peruvian Governments broke from 4 to 10 points as a result of fresh apprehension that the government may stop service on its external debt which amounts to approximately $100,000,000 until normal conditions are restored. The decline which carried them down to around the lows touched last summer following the revolution, was accompanied by sympathetic reactions in other Latin-American issues, notably Chilean, Colombian and Bolivian issues. The others were off a point or two.

Liberty 1st 4¼s Rise.

The retreat of U. S. Governments was slower and selling not as extensive as in the closing days of the previous week. At the day's lows, long term Treasury issues were off as much as ¾ of a point but the group recovered some ground. Treasury 4¼s, which with Treasury 3¾s of 1943-47, showed the biggest loss on the day with a drop of ⅜ of a point, sold off 15-16ths at one time. The one exception to the lower trend were Liberty 1st 4¼s, which closed 2-32ds higher.

Houses specializing in governments see little likelihood of the government group regaining stability until Congress disposes of the bonus problem, and investors in corporate domestic issues are expected to exercise greater caution. New financing is expected to slow up.

Second Grade Rails Ease.

Prime investment bonds were fairly steady, on narrow fluctuations either way, but the second grade rails were again lower and utility and industrials in the same class eased.

Aside from the drop in Latin-Americans other features in the foreign group were the dip of German 7s below par before firming and softness in Mexicans.

Public offering will be made shortly of $2,800,000 Central West Public Service Co. 3-year 9 per cent bonds.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Trading in cotton was comparatively quiet today. An early decline in response to easy Liverpool cables was followed by rallies on covering and trade buying. Contracts, after selling off to 10.54 under the early pressure, advanced to 10.66 and closed at 10.63, with the general market closing steady not unchanged to 4 points lower.

The opening was steady 3 to 5 points lower and prices showed net losses of 9 to 11 points during the early trading under some Southern selling and scattering liquidation, which was responded by the relatively easy showing of the Liverpool cables, but the offerings were absorbed by trade buying in the near months, while the decline seemed to bring in some covering or commission house buying in the later deliveries. The volume of business became very quiet after these early offerings had been absorbed, however, and the market showed a generally steady undertone during the balance of the day with March advancing from 10.27 to 10.40, and July from 10.70 to 10.81. At the best, present crop positions sold 2 to 4 points above Saturday's closing quotations, while the new crop was relatively easy with March 1 point higher to 1 point lower. A little realizing was considered responsible for closing reactions of 3 or 4 points from the best.

No particular news factor was mentioned in connection with the rally from the early decline and the market was so narrow that it responded to comparatively small orders either way. There was a little Southern selling at the start, but pressure from that source was not much in evidence later in the day, while the trade seemed to be buying near months. There was less exchanging than recently and differences narrowed slightly with March closing 96 points under December compared with a difference of 100 points at the end of last week. Buying on the hedging decline may have been encouraged by some rather more favorable reports from the cotton goods markets, but much of the business seemed to originate in technical readjustments of one sort or another.

Liverpool cables said continental buying in that market had been supplied by hedging and local liquidation, but reported a well-sustained demand for cotton cloths. Exports today 20,802, making 4,532,578 so far this season. Port receipts, 10,566. United States port stocks, 4,061,240.

CELEBRATED FLIERS WILL ATTEND BALL

Willard Hotel to Be Scene of Event in Honor of Noted Aviators.

TICKETS NOW AVAILABLE

There will be no dearth of notable aviation figures at the reception and ball for 1930's distinguished fliers to be given Wednesday night by the Aero Club of Washington. While regrets have been sent by some honor guests, the affair at the Willard will be graced by the presence of such celebrities as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Miss Amelia Earhart, Miss Elinor Smith, the Hunter brothers, Lee Shoenhair, Dwight S. Zimmerly, Miss Ruth Nichols, Lieut. Alford J. Williams, Clarence Chamberlin and Lieut. James Doolittle. Another prominent figure who will be present is Ward T. Van Orman, one of America's greatest balloonists.

Lieut. Apollo Soucek, who established a new altitude record while stationed at the Naval Air Station here last year, and now on sea duty, will be unable to attend. The certificate to be presented to Lieut. Soucek by the National Aeronautic Association in recognition of his achievement will be accepted by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department.

Capt. Frank Hawks, now making a flying tour of the country, will attend the event if his schedule brings him in the vicinity of Washington.

Mrs. Marion Eddy Conrad, holder of the seaplane altitude record for women, is another notable woman flyer who will attend.

The public is invited to the event, for which tickets are available at the National Aeronautic Association and through the various civic and flying clubs.

Elton J. Layton is chairman of the reception and ball committee, and the committee which will receive the distinguished flyers is composed of the following: Senator Hiram Bingham, Dr. Joseph S. Ames, Col. Harry S. Blee, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, F. Trubee Davison, Gen. James E. Fechet, Prof. Charles F. Marvin, W. Irving Glover, H. F. Guggenheim, Capt. Frank Hawks, David S. Ingalls, Maj. Reed Landis, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett and Col. Clarence M. Young.

Airplane Armada To "Attack" City

Demonstration to Be Given Here Memorial Day by 572 Ships.

An aerial armada of Army planes will advance on Washington Memorial Day, after theoretical destruction of New York and other cities of the Atlantic Seaboard, Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison yesterday warned Capital residents.

The 1931 Army Air Corps "field exercises" will begin at Dayton, Ohio, May 18, and end at Washington May 30, Mr. Davison announced. By various routes some 572 planes of the First Air Division will descend on New York City. They will proceed thence in battle formation to Boston, where night "attacks" will be made over the New England area.

Returning again to New York, the division will take to the air once more on May 29, with Philadelphia, Camden, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington as objectives. The main demonstration over Washington will take place Memorial Day, Mr. Davison said.

Gas Leaks From Stove; Man Found Unconscious

Thomas Martin, 38 years old, was found unconscious yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of his home on Eleventh street southeast, near G street. Gas was escaping from the stove.

After treatment by members of the Fire Rescue Squad and a Casualty Hospital physician, he was removed to Gallinger Hospital, where it was said his condition was not serious.

Store Faces $25,000 Suit After Accident

Alleging she fell and was seriously injured when she tripped over a platform in an aisle of the store, Edna C. Longshore, of Kane, Pa., filed suit yesterday against the Hecht Co., seeking to recover $25,000 damages.

The woman states she was a customer in the store and was seeking to leave the store when she tripped over a 4-inch platform which protruded into the aisle.

$10,000 Suit Filed After Autos Collide

As the result of an automobile collision last October 30, on Central avenue northeast, near Sixty-second street, Meyer Kans, of Capitol Heights, Md., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against George Herath, an employe of the Wardman Park Hotel, seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

Kans asserts that he was a passenger in Herath's automobile when it collided with another motor car. Negligence on the part of the defendant is alleged.

Bishop Will Dedicate New Children's Home

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will officiate at dedication ceremonies at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Episcopal Home for Children, Nebraska avenue and Rock Creek Ford road. Three of the five proposed buildings on the site have been completed and are occupied—the administration building, boys' dormitory and girls' dormitory. Work on the infirmary and infants' building will be started as soon as funds are available.

Following the exercises, members of the board of managers will conduct guests on a tour of inspection.

Minor Asks $25,000 After Bus Overturns

Alleging he was seriously injured when a bus he was riding in overturned near Rolla, Mo., on August 12, 1930, Harlen Bilyeu, a minor, brought suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $25,000 damages from Pickwick-Greyhound Lines, Inc., and Greyhound Management Co., both of 6d Hanover place northwest.

Young Bilyeu sues through his guardian, Bertha M. Bilyeu, of 206 E street northwest. He states that on August 12 last he was accepted as a passenger from Springfield, Mo., to Washington. En route the bus overturned because of the fact that it had been permitted to become unsafe, the plaintiff asserts.

Slayer of Woman Denied New Trial

Bell Must Go to Electric Chair on March 6; Gordon Upheld.

Cordous Bell, Negro, who is under sentence to die in the electric chair March 6, following conviction on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Alice Metz, also colored, yesterday lost his fight for a new trial.

The Court of Appeals, in an opinion handed down yesterday, held that the charge to the jury by Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court was proper. Attorney E. Russell Kelly had argued that the judge erred in not charging the jury as to manslaughter. The appellate court also held that the justice had not erred in permitting the Government to introduce an alleged confession.

Bell is alleged to have killed the Metz woman, with whom he had been intimate, in the taxicab office where she was employed. He claimed the woman's death was accidental, alleged she had grappled for possession of the gun.

INTEREST RATE SET BY CLEARING HOUSE

1½ Per Cent Yearly Levy on Deposits of Banks Decided Upon.

INCREASE IN GAS OUTPUT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Following similar action by clearing house associations of various neighboring cities, the Washington Clearing House Association at a meeting yesterday adopted a rule fixing the maximum rate of interest that may be paid by members and associate members of the clearing house on deposits of banks and trust companies at 1½ per cent per year. The present rate averages approximately 2 per cent.

This action of the clearing house association, it was explained, does not affect in any way the payment of interest on the savings or demand deposits of individuals, firms or corporations, but relates exclusively to the deposits of banks and trust companies. Thirteen of the 39 banks of Washington are members of the clearing house and 22 banks are associate members.

Washington Gas Report.

Combined net income of Washington Gas Light Co. and its subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1930, was $910,445.98, President George A. G. Wood announced yesterday at the annual meeting of shareholders. Of this amount, $468,000 was paid to stockholders by way of dividends, leaving a balance of $442,445.98 which was added to the company's surplus.

He reported that during 1930 the total amount of gas sold was 6,213,193,943 cubic feet, an increase of 131,752,735 cubic feet over 1929.

In his review of the year, Mr. Wood stated: "Effective October 1, 1930, a new schedule of rates was placed in operation under which we estimate that our customers will enjoy an annual saving of approximately $400,000. Our idea in doing this was to encourage the use of gas by making it as cheap as possible. The effect of this has already been demonstrated in the consumption figures for October, November and December which show increases of 8, 15 and 22 per cent, respectively, as compared with the corresponding months of 1929.

"During the year, we have paid out for additions, betterments and improvements to plant and equipment the sum of $1,295,829.81 and of this amount approximately 85 per cent was spent upon our distribution system. We laid 113 miles of mains and 3,361 house services and installed 4,467 meters. It is especially significant that we added about 95 miles of gas distributing mains in new territory, giving gas service to many families heretofore unable to enjoy the use of gas. These mains were placed in new territory for which franchises were received and will prove a source of increasing revenue.

Gas Appliance Sales Gain.

"It is a further source of satisfaction to note that the new business department has been greatly expanded. Our sales of gas appliances show an increase of over $500,000 this year as compared with last year. We have put special attention upon the betterment of gas appliances because we feel the gas load will be increased proportionately as satisfactory and economical operation of gas appliances becomes general in our territory."

All directors were reelected as follows: Fred S. Burroughs, George B. Fraser, Wilton J. Lambert, Christopher H. Pope, Corcoran Thom, Robert D. Weaver, George A. G. Wood. President Wood was host to directors and officers at a luncheon in his office following the meeting.

Repayment of policy loans and maintenance of life insurance already written are seen as the two most important phases of the life underwriters' work today by H. Lawrence Choate, general agent for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., of Newark, here.

Is Following Policy.

Mr. Choate's office has had excellent results in carrying out a program along these lines and especially gratifying returns from the idea of immediately replacing the amount loaned with a small, short term endowment policy, to guarantee the repayment and the full coverage originally desired by the policy holder.

The Baltimore agency of the company will hold its annual conference February 9, with a large delegation of home office executives present and the entire Washington agency as guests. L. A. Spalding, general agent at Baltimore, will be in charge of the meeting. Mr. Choate also speaking. Agency Vice President Oliver Thurman, W. H. Beers, special agency assistant, and Dr. Reider, medical director, will be present from the home office.

Mutual Fire Insurance Aids.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co. yesterday all managers were unanimously reelected as follows: W. A. H. Church, C. Kattelmann, L. Pierce Bohler, E. C. Brandenburg, Frank A. Johnson and Arthur Carr.

The annual report showed a good condition of affairs. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late B. F. Saul, for 30 years a manager of the company, were adopted.

Eastman, Dillon & Co. announce that William Jasper DuBose has been appointed comanager with Arthur Foraker of the firm's local office.

Owing to illness of Dr. Stephen I. Miller, executive manager, the National Association of Credit Men, principal speaker, the forum dinner of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, scheduled for tomorrow night at the Shoreham Hotel, is postponed indefinitely.

IMPROVED BANKING CONDITIONS IN SIGHT

More Than Seasonal Flow of Funds Into Reserve Institutions Cited.

CONFIDENCE ON UPGRADE

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Evidence of more stable banking conditions and a gradual restoration of public confidence appeared in a more than seasonal flow of currency into the Reserve Banks after the first week in January, the New York Federal Reserve Bank states in its monthly review, published today.

While the greater portion of the January inflow of $470,000,000 of currency was used largely to retire Federal Reserve credit, the funds remaining in the New York money market were larger in volume and more continuous than any time in a number of years, the bulletin commepts. The average amount of excess reserves held by New York banks in January was around $60,000,000, or about 1 per cent of the deposits of these banks.

Serious Recession Cited.

"This accumulation of surplus funds in New York is a development rarely encountered in recent years, but typical of periods of serious business recession," the monthly review states.

"Lower commodity prices and reduced pay rolls lead, at such times, to reductions in the amount of currency in circulation, and the pouring into New York of funds seeking employment. This tendency is accentuated when apprehension limits the types of employment of funds which banks and other investors are willing to make.

"In 1908, for instance, the flow of money into the New York banks resulted in the accmulation of about $60,000,000 of surplus reserves within a few months after the 1907 panic, and time money declined from 15 to 2 per cent." This amount represented about 4 per cent of the total deposits of clearing house banks, the review says, and points out that conditions in the 1896 and 1893 periods of depression were far more severe.

Other Periods Compared.

"In 1897 the clearing house banks had excess reserves averaging about $50,000,000, or 8 to 10 per cent of their total deposits, and in the first half of 1894 their reserves amounted to from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000, or 13 to 18 per cent of their total deposits.

"These excess reserves, above the 25 per cent reserves which the banks were then required to maintain, represented the idle funds which they were under pressure to employ, and in each of these periods the effects were reflected in call loan rates which were frequently as low as 1 per cent on the stock exchange and sometimes as low as ½ per cent. They were reflected also in rapid expansion of bank credit and a rise in bond prices."

In the month just closed the official call money rate held at 1½ per cent steadily from early in the month, and funds outside were quoted at 1 per cent frequently.

Earnings Reports Show Big Decline

Lowest Profits in 4 Years for 278 Companies Are Tabulated.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The annual shower of financial statements indicates so far that corporate earnings in 1930 were the lowest in four years.

A tabulation by Standard Statistics Co. of the returns of the first 278 reporting companies shows that profits were only about two-thirds of the record income of 1929. Of the 278 there were 248 industrial units, showing aggregate earnings of 65 per cent of 1929, 20 rails showing 67 per cent, and 10 utilities only 5 per cent under the previous year's total.

The statistical organization points out, however, that it is customary for the most favorably situated companies to report early, so that the present showing is probably considerably better than the final exhibit will be. Standard estimates that when all the figures are in, a shrinkage of 40 to 45 per cent from 1929 will be shown. Several companies, owing to special situations or lines of business little influenced by general conditions, have reported earnings in excess of 1929. To date there are more than three score in this category.

Income Tax Facts

NO. 2.

Form for filing returns of income have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a person of his obligation to file a return within the time prescribed by law—on or before March 16, 1931, if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as is true with most individuals. March 15, the usual date, this year falls on Sunday.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, at offices of collectors of internal revenue or deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1930 was derived chiefly from salary and wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A. Persons whose net income was derived from a business or profession, including farming, or from the sale of property, although the amount was less than $5,000, are required to use the larger form—1040. The use of Form 1040 is required also where the net income was in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession or other sources.

Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to the public and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.
